BATTLE RAGING ABOUT MUKDEN

Russians Fighting Desperately to Prevent Being Overwhelmed.

HAVE SOME SUCCESS

Gen. Kuropatkin Reports Beating Back His Foe at Different Points.

JAPANESE LOSS IS HEAVY

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

MUKDEN, March 5.—(Noon.)—All sound is drowned by the roar of battle, which is raging northwest, west and southwest of the city, a few miles away, between Gen. Nogi's Port Arthur veterans and the hastily assembled army interposed by Gen. Kuropatkin to defend the city and railroads. The stroke came like lightning out of a clear sky.

The artillery duel has been raging since morning to the westward of Mukden, and the Japanese shells are exploding within three miles of the imperial tombs. The line of the Japanese advance guards extends about seven miles parallel with the railway.

Scattered Chinese villages which are practically the only shelters in the open plain are receiving particular attention from the gunners. The Russian batteries have replied vigorously to the Japanese fire and the exchange of shrapnel has been terrific. The whole of the fire zone is occasionally obscured by dense white smoke from exploding missiles.

Situation Is Critical.

It is reported the situation has somewhat improved, but it still is extremely critical. It is reported the Japanese have been thrown back in the district of Lunfanshan and are retiring along the Sin Min Tin road, but heavy fighting is continuing there.

The Japanese vanguard posts are about six miles west of Mukden, where the bursting of shrapnel is plainly visible. A fight also is raging at Suchudsiapu and Lanschanpu, which on Saturday were captured by the Japanese after a terrific combat, the villages several times changing hands.

The Japanese on Friday advanced on the Russian position at Shakhe village but were beaten off. Twice they attacked Putiloff hill, but both attacks were repulsed. At Onbenpuss a Japanese guard of over 20 battalions made 18 attacks the night of March 3 and the morning of March 4, storming the redoubts most furiously. All these attacks were repulsed with heavy loss. The ground in front of the redoubts was fairly strewn with heaps of Japanese corpses.

The Japanese and Russian artillery are engaged in the heaviest duel of the war. Russian mortars are fired at the Shakhe bridge, and Japanese 11-inch guns are in full play, but the Russian fortifications, on which the Russians had been working all winter, offer a fairly secure protection for their defenders.

Advancing on the East.

There is little news of Gen. Kuropatkin's operations east of the line. The Russians are holding their ground and even advancing, but it is reported that a Japanese cavalry division with 12 quick firing guns is sweeping far to the eastward on a rapid turning movement.

The carnage at the center and on both flanks has been enormous. The Japanese at many places simply threw away their lives, beating against the Russians' powerful fortifications in attacks which, in the center, apparently were intended chiefly as a demonstration to cover the driving home of Gen. Nogi's blow. It is believed now the operation to the eastward was in part in the nature of a feint, with the design to draw reinforcements there. If this was the design, it was successful. Gen. Kuropatkin having sent the First corps to the assistance of Gen. Linevich.

As the result of the week's operations the Russian right is bent sharply backward instead of paralleling the Shakhe river, and now runs northwest and southeast, passing eight miles from Mukden, covering and crossing the Sinmintin road. According to prisoners, the Japanese force on the Liao river includes the First, Seventh and Ninth divisions, from Port Arthur. Part of the turning force is probably made up of reserves which came from Yinkow by rail on seven trains.

Fight With Bravery of Fanatics.

The Port Arthur veterans advanced to the attack shouting in Russian: "Out of the way for us; we are from Port Arthur." They offered their lives with the same fanatical bravery, and were as unshaken by heavy losses as at the siege of Port Arthur.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 5.—The advance guard of the Japanese left army was within five and one-half miles of Mukden station Saturday, according to a telegram from Gen. Kuropatkin given out today. Other Japanese had captured Suchudzia and Lanschanpa the same day, while their attacks on Putiloff hill and 15 fierce assaults on Kandolesan were repulsed. The commander-in-chief's dispatch, which is dated March 4, is as follows:

"Friday night was quiet on the western flank. On Friday a detachment of our forces on the Mukden-Sinmintin road met and fought a body of the enemy advancing from the westward. Gun firing has been audible since morning in the direction of Suchudzia. All is quiet on the center, excepting in the Shakhe zone, which the Japanese attacked during Friday evening, creeping up to the wire entanglements of our fortifications and hurling hand grenades. The attackers, however, were soon repulsed without succeeding in damaging the entanglements. The Japanese guard, during Friday evening, continued its attacks on Kandolesan, and the tenth attack was repulsed at 4 o'clock this morning.

"Japanese corpses are piled high against our earthworks. The enemy's attack against the Gaotu pass po-

OYAMA DRAWING ENSNARING NET

GAINS AT EVERY POINT

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

TOKYO, March 5, 2 p. m.—Field Marshal Oyama is continuing his great dives about both flanks of the Russian army. His front is now a huge bow, the base on the Shakhe river, the right arm reaching a point east of Fushun and the left arm extending to a point west of Mukden. He is steadily tightening the great cord of men and steel. Gen. Kuropatkin is striving desperately to check the Japanese advances, contesting the flank encroachments and hammering the Japanese center.

The Japanese are making heavy gains of ground west of the railway and have captured great quantities of stores and other spoils. There has already been bloody fighting and heavy losses, and this will be vastly increased when the masses of infantry meet. Field Marshal Oyama, reporting on March 4, says:

"A few days ago our force in the Haienchuang direction pressed the enemy into his position at Tita, which is 15 miles southeast of Fushun, and Manchuntun, 15 miles south of Fushun. The engagement continues in the Shakhe direction.

"The night of March 3 the enemy made four determined attacks against our positions at Housuntupotzu and Tangshintun. All were entirely repulsed.

"In the district east of the railway the enemy's frequent small attacks were all repulsed.

"In the district west of the railway our force is continuing fierce attacks and has occupied the districts of Wuchenying, five miles west of Shakhe village, and Laishonpao, three miles northwest of Wuchenying, and Shuhopao, the terminus of the new railway constructed by the Russians.

"The force on the right of the Hun river is dislodging the enemy northeast of Siupeho, which is between the Hun and Liao rivers, and has advanced north. This force carried the enemy's defense line between Chantan and Shufantai, and pursued the enemy fiercely. The line now is between Wochiaho, 15 miles southwest of Mukden, and Taitse, 13 miles west of Mukden and Lamuho, four miles north of Taitse.

"During a previous engagement the enemy's casualties were heavy. The spoils we captured were great. No time to investigate. We captured large quantities of provisions at Wanchangpao and captured a clothing depot at Tahantai."

Estimates of Gen. Kuropatkin's force between Shakhe and Tie Pass, prepared here, give a total of slightly more than 400,000, composed of 335,000 infantry, 53,000 cavalry and 35,000 artillery with 1,604 guns. This estimate does not include troops at Vladivostok and other garrisons, railway guards and other employes. The grand total east of Lake Baikal is estimated at 700,000 men.

TEN REPORTED KILLED IN SOUTHERN RACE WAR

NEW ORLEANS, March 5.—(Special.)—According to reports which have been received here tonight, a fierce race war is raging in the vicinity of a backwoods town in Mississippi. Reports are very meager, although it is learned that from five to ten men have been killed and a number injured. At last reports a score of desperate negroes had barricaded themselves in a cabin a few miles out of town and are besieged by whites.

PANIC IS CAUSED BY FERRYBOAT COLLISION

One Vessel Almost Capsized and Passengers Tried to Leap Overboard.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, March 5.—Hurled to the floor of the cabins of the ferryboat Sag Harbor, when she crashed into and was almost capsized by the ferryboat Harry B. Hollins in the East river tonight, hundreds of persons were thrown into a panic and tried to leap overboard.

As soon as they regained their feet a rush was made for the doors. Women with children in their arms ran to the decks and prepared to jump from the Sag Harbor to the Hollins. Others shouted that the boat was ablaze and ran again into the cabins to search for life preservers.

Passengers said that when the collision occurred the Sag Harbor partly turned over. When she finally righted many women had fainted and men started to fight their way to the cabin doors. Deckhands and a few men passengers finally restored order. The guard rail of the Hollins, which is a double-decked boat, had swept the deck of the Sag Harbor, carrying away many heavy stanchions.

BIG TUNNEL A FAILURE.

Pennsylvania Railroad Company Will Tear Out One Near Greensburg and Widen Roadbed.

GREENSBURG, March 5.—(Special.)—The big Radebaugh tunnel, a mile west of this place, built at an enormous expense four years ago by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, is to be torn out. The tunnel, which is 21,000 feet long, was one of the biggest undertakings of the Pennsylvania railroad, at the time the arch was built. It has never been satisfactory, and some engineers consider it dangerous.

It has been practically decided to take the top off the tunnel and widen the roadbed.

SENATE MEETS TODAY IN AN EXTRA SESSION

Cabinet Appointments to Be Confirmed and Santo Domingo Treaty Taken Up.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The extra session of the senate, which adjourned yesterday, will meet tomorrow at noon. At that time the expectation is that the president will send to the senate a number of nominations, the most important of which will be the members of his cabinet. It has been generally understood that with but one exception, that of Postmaster General Robert J. Wynne, these nominations will be those of the incumbents. For the place to be vacated by Mr. Wynne, the president will nominate the Hon. George B. Cortelyou, the head of the Republican national committee. Mr. Wynne will be nominated for the office of consul general to London, now filled by the Hon. H. Clay Evans.

Another matter which will engage the attention of the senate during the extra session will be the consideration of the Santo Domingo treaty, which comes over from the regular session of the last congress. The president has ready a message to the senate urging the importance of ratification of that treaty, and unless he has changed his mind the message will go to the senate during the coming week.

Coal Operator Drops Dead.

BALTIMORE, March 5.—George W. Kitzmiller, aged 50, a coal operator of Elaine, W. Va., dropped dead in the lobby of the Eutaw house tonight. A few minutes before he had been talking to the clerk, apparently in the best of health.

Sighted Japanese Squadrons.

LONDON, March 6.—The German steamer Nubia, according to the correspondent of the Daily Mail at Hong Kong, reports having sighted two Japanese squadrons on Saturday, 150 miles southeast of Hong Kong.

CONTRACTORS UNABLE TO BID

Many Are Refused Prices on Material for Big Filter Plant.

BE LET IN TWO DAYS

Specifications for Contracts Require Machinery Made Only by One Firm.

SEVERAL SUITS THREATENED

With the last moment to put in their bids only two days off, a number of large contractors are alarmed to find that they will probably be unable to bid for the $4,000,000 filtration contracts, because of their inability, for some unknown reason, to obtain prices from manufacturers on machinery and other special material and work required in the construction of the big Pittsburgh filter plant.

The discovery has been made that the specifications for the 20 contracts require that only a certain kind of material, as manufactured by one concern, shall be used.

Contractors also claim to have received information that a certain contractor is the only one who is able to get prices on material from this and other concerns for the filtration plant and that any they will not be able to compete with this favored contractor in the bidding.

One Concern Is Favored.

"It is an outrage," said one large contractor, who planned to bid on the whole plant. "I wish to call your attention to a section of the specifications for contract No. 3, which provides for two pumping engines for Brilliant pumping station, for which $250,000 is appropriated. This section of the specifications for this contract reads as follows:

Pumping engines shall be of a duty identical above the engine now here with the pair of 15,000,000 gallon engines now in place, and the water ends shall be of a design the connection of parts and the characteristics of working of which have been capable demonstrated by past experience to be fitted for long and continuous service in pumping water for a similar service at that borough station, and no design will be accepted which is in any way experimental.

This contractor produced a blue print, furnished by the public works department, showing the name, location and capacity of the engines now in place at the Brilliant pumping station and the position of the two new 25,000,000-gallon engines which are to be installed.

Must Be Allis-Chalmers Engines.

The blue print shows that the two 15,000,000-gallon engines now in place at the Brilliant station are made by the Allis-Chalmers Company, and according to the specifications, as cited above, the new engines must be "identical" with the Allis-Chalmers engines. No other grades of engines will be accepted.

The contractor, who does not wish his name to become public for the reason that his chances in the bidding, in case he should bid, might be lessened, said he had solicited an estimate on the pumping engines from the western concern which makes them. The firm was unwilling to give its figures to him and he said he was unable to obtain any prices on the pumping engines the specifications call for.

"After I had been refused estimates from the company making these engines," said he, "I went to the superintendent of the water bureau and he said that he would furnish plans of the Allis-Chalmers engines upon which I could bid, but this would require patterns to be made of every piece of the machinery at Brilliant station, and these patterns would cost $50,000.

Can Bid $10,000 Lower.

"Thus, the Allis-Chalmers Company, or some contractor bidding for the company, would be able to bid $10,000 lower than we could, because we do not have the patterns. Another thing, do you suppose that the Allis-Chalmers Company would permit us, or any other person, to build engines upon their plans?"

The word "identical" in the specifications cuts out any other type of engine, and unless a contractor can obtain prices from the manufacturers of these engines he will be unable to bid, except at a loss, and if his bid is the lowest he stands a good chance of having it thrown out on the ground that he has no experience in the building of this particular line of engines and cannot furnish them.

The specifications of such contract also state that the contractor must have experience in the line of work to which he bids and with the material restricted to one concern and that concern unwilling to furnish figures, he is put in a position where he can really bid at all.

Cannot Get Prices.

The same thing is said to be true of boiler feed settings, brick work and other materials. According to another contractor the specifications call for boilers with wrought steel ends, and only two company is said to manufacture this particular kind of boiler. A large amount of miscellaneous material is specified in the contracts, such as indicating apparatus, flush etc., of which contractors claim they do not know who the manufacturers are and say they cannot obtain this information at the city hall.

Contractors claim there are numerous items all through the general specifications covering work and material, on which they are absolutely unable to get figures or estimates of any kind. Contractors say the situation is a serious one and one predicted that there would be such a hot fight over the bids, which will be received Wednesday, that the contract cannot be let and the city administration, will be forced to advertise for new bids, or meet a number of suits in court.

A number of contractors who have found themselves in this position express themselves as unwilling to go to the trouble and expense of estimating on the work because they feel that they are discriminated against to such an extent that it will be impossible for them to get any or all of the work even should they be the lowest bidders.

Contractors Afraid to Bid.

Mayor Magee said on Saturday the law does not require that the contracts shall

CARNEGIE SHOWN THE FAMOUS NOTE

Ironmaster Amused on Seeing the $5,000,000 Chadwick Document.

SPECIMENS OF SIGNATURE

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CLEVELAND, March 5.—Trustee of the Chadwick Assets Nathan Loeser and County Prosecutor Harvey B. Keeler called by appointment upon Andrew Carnegie at the home of Sylvester T. Everett in the city today. Mr. Loeser brought with him the famous $5,000,000 note and the equally famous trust agreement. The officials obtained specimens of Mr. Carnegie's handwriting for the purpose of comparing them with the writing on the paper which Mrs. Chadwick used as security for many of her transactions. Mr. Carnegie was amused when he saw the documents bearing his name. The dissimilarity between the signature which Mr. Carnegie wrote for Mr. Keeler and the signature which was reputed to be his on the bank paper was marked.

In Interest of Justice.

A second purpose of the visit was to learn if Mr. Carnegie could be dispensed from coming for the second trial which Mrs. Chadwick and her husband will have to undergo upon state indictments. Mr. Carnegie said that he was willing to come to Cleveland in the interest of justice as often as necessary; that he regarded it as his duty as a citizen to do so, and that every citizen should aid in the punishment of crime wherever found. Mr. Carnegie said that he would be in court tomorrow morning to be sworn as a witness in the government's case.

Prof. Gould of Cleveland, a handwriting expert, was present during the conference between Mr. Carnegie and the trustee and Prosecutor Keeler, and made some interesting comment upon the two styles of writing as shown by the alleged forgeries and the genuine signature of Mr. Carnegie.

Mr. Carnegie, in the course of his talk with Prosecutor Keeler and Trustee Loeser, repeated his former statement that he had never met Mrs. Chadwick, had never even heard of her until the final crash in the woman's financial affairs came. Inasmuch as the great ironmaster and the prisoner, who is to be put on trial in court tomorrow morning, will meet face to face for the first time at the opening of court, the scene is likely to prove a dramatic one.

Mrs. Chadwick Talks.

In a statement made tonight Mrs. Cassie Chadwick professes to have confidence that the outcome of the trial starting tomorrow will be in her favor. She said:

"I have great hopes for the outcome. This is a big event for me, and naturally I am all concerned and anxious, not for the result, mind you, but more because it is a great epoch in my life. I will be nervous, but that is not owing to the trial itself, but on account of the large number of people who will be there looking at me. That unstrings me. I can hardly stand it.

"They will say bad things about me, but I will not hear them. I will not be able to hear anything that is going on. You know I am hard of hearing. Mr. Carnegie's presence in the city is very good news to me. The probabilities are that I will not go on the stand in my own defense Tuesday."

READY TO MAKE ARREST FOR STANFORD POISONING

San Francisco Police Are Awaiting Result of Chemical Analysis at Honolulu.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5.—Acting Chief of Police Spillane said tonight that the police department of this city had stopped all work on the Stanford case today. "Absolutely nothing can be done until I hear from High Sheriff Henry of Honolulu," said Spillane, "in regard to the result obtained by the chemists in their analysis of the contents of the stomach and the conclusions deduced by the physicians from the autopsy performed on the various organs of the body."

"Are you ready to make an arrest in the event that these reports make it certain that the cause of Mrs. Stanford's death was the result of strychnine poisoning?" the chief was asked.

"Yes, we are prepared to act," was the reply.

Boy Drowned While Skating.

be let to the lowest bidder, but to the "lowest and most responsible bidder." This gives wide latitude in the award of the contracts, according to the view of Mayor Hays.

There is a general complaint in connection with the clause in all sections of the specifications covering the entire work, wherein the director is given absolute authority in deciding whether every specification is fulfilled or not, and contractors hesitate to jeopardize their interests and the large amount of money involved to the word of one man.

The dispute over the Highland reservoir contract, in which one firm was bankrupted, is cited by contractors and they call attention to the fact that the director of public works is given the same power in the execution of the contracts for the filtration plant that he exercised in the construction of the new Highland reservoir.

WOMAN IS TORTURED BY MASKED ROBBERS

Tarentum Boarding House Mistress Dragged by Hair and Tied in Chair.

After subjecting her to physical torture two masked men robbed Mrs. Mary Eaton of Tarentum of money and jewelry and tied her to a chair, in her home, late Saturday night. Mrs. Eaton conducts a boarding house in Tarentum. Her boarders are chiefly glassworkers and because Saturday was pay day for them the robbers evidently suspected Mrs. Eaton of having received a large sum of money from her boarders.

She was alone in the house when the two men entered, each with his face concealed by a handkerchief. They demanded money and Mrs. Eaton refused to give them any. They then seized her by the hair and dragged her around the room, knocking her head against the wall until, forced by pain, she gave up her pocketbook which contained $28. They took two gold rings from her fingers and left her, after tying her to a chair.

She succeeded in working herself free and notified the police, who were unable to get any trace of the men. Mrs. Eaton is 50 years of age and is suffering much from the shock of the assault and robbery.

TWO TRAINS SMASHED IN HEAD-ON COLLISION

One Man Was Killed and Two Injured in an Accident on Baltimore & Ohio.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

TOLEDO, March 5.—As a result of a head-on collision between two freight trains on the Baltimore & Ohio, four miles east of Defiance, this morning, Fireman Samuel Beadle of Garret, Ind., was instantly killed and J. E. Cogley, fireman, and Thomas Carr, brakeman, both of Garrett, were seriously injured. Cogley's two legs were cut off and one of Carr's was crushed so that amputation was necessary. Both will survive, it is thought.

There were 38 cars in one train and 40 in another and the impact was so terrific that there was hardly a solid car left in either train. Three engineers and one fireman, as well as the others of the train crews, jumped just before the collision and escaped injury.

Confusion of train orders is said to be responsible for the collision.

JAPANESE EVERYWHERE HAVE HAD BIG LOSSES

Thirteenth Charge Made Against Russians at Kaotu Pass is Defeated.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

MUKDEN, March 4, 7 a. m.—(Delayed in transmission.)—The battle round the Mukden positions against Nogi's troops was resumed this morning. The Russian artillery fire was much heavier than on Friday. Up till Friday evening the positions on the Shakhe river remained unchanged.

The Japanese everywhere sustained severe losses. Their thirteenth charge against Kaotou pass was beaten off at 8 o'clock Friday morning. In the storming of Sandepas they advanced to the wire entanglements, where they were checked and thrown back. Their tenth charge at Kandalisan, on the Russian left wing, was beaten back at 4 o'clock this morning. Refugees are arriving from Simintin and the region north of the Hun river.

At the close of yesterday's battle on the west front the Japanese who were taken prisoners were unable to walk or remain awake on account of exhaustion, and lay like dead under guard. This incident shows the tremendous effort back of Gen. Nogi's advance.

Occasional discharges of artillery are heard to the southwest this morning and it is reported that the Japanese have fallen back from the position they held when the battle was fought on March 3. The Japanese continue their demonstration along the front.

Moonshiners Caught Without Shot.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., March 5.—Revenue men are elated over the capture this week of West Virginia's most noted moonshiner, "Old Tom" Lilly, who has been operating illicit stills back in the Alleghenies, both in Raleigh and Mercer counties, near the Virginia line. The arrest of Lilly with his two sons, "Young Tom" and Elias, was accomplished by Deputy United States Marshal Dan Cunningham and a posse without a single shot. The Lillys had sworn they would never be taken alive. When cornered in Raleigh county in 1898 they killed Capt. Kelly, shot Revenue Agent Max Whitten through both legs and wounded two of the posse.

Room 10, Postal Building.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 5.

Today was one of the most quiet days President Roosevelt has spent since he was elected last November. For the first time in his public life he yielded to the urgent requests of his family and his guards and gave up a scheduled public appearance. He had expected to go to morning service at his favorite church, but he finally decided to cancel the engagement. No one admitted any definite reason for fearing this appearance, but the police and secret service men were relieved when the president decided to remain in the White House.

For the last week there has been considerable talk of possible attempts to injure the president, and as the city was still overrun with thousands of strangers this morning who had spent a more or less hilarious night, it was generally deemed wise that the president should not appear on the streets today as scheduled.

While the president yielded as far as the trip to church was concerned, he showed his disregard for all talk of danger by taking a long stroll about the White House grounds early this morning. He wore no hat and greatly enjoyed the crisp air and bright sunshine. He also insisted on taking his regular afternoon exercise and took a brisk horseback ride through the suburbs.

Few Callers Admitted.

The president left the White House by a side entrance in an open carriage and drove to the edge of the city, where his saddlehorse was awaiting him. He was not recognized by a majority of the crowd about the White House grounds, but as he drove down Connecticut avenue, the fashionable thoroughfare, he was greeted by many friends and citizens to whom he was kept bowing and tipping his hat almost continually.

There were many callers at the White House today, but none but a few personal friends were received. Even several important political callers were turned away. A great many came only to leave their cards and express congratulations. There were only family parties, including the list of visiting relatives and house guests at the luncheon and dinner, and the executive mansion was dark and quiet before midnight.

That portion of the White House grounds in front of the executive mansion was thrown open to visitors today, and thousands of people walked through and peeped into the doors and windows of the president's residence. Nobody was admitted to any part of the building nor to the executive offices, which are usually open to visitors on Sunday.

Mr. Fairbanks at Church.

Vice President and Mrs. Fairbanks attended service this morning at their usual place of worship, the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church. The only unusual decorations of the church today were two silk American flags draped behind the pulpit and a smaller flag which had been placed to mark the vice president's pew. The Rev. Dr. Frank M. Bristol, pastor of the church, preached the sermon, the theme of which was "Liberty," his text being from Paul's Epistle to the Galatians, "Ye have been called unto liberty." At the conclusion of the service the pastor and a large part of the congregation gathered about the vice president's pew and extended to him their congratulations on his induction into his high office.

While thousands of visitors to the inaugural ceremonies left the city last night and early today, other thousands remained to view the historic sights of the national capital over Sunday. The day was fair, but the air was sharp with frost, making heavy overcoats not merely comfortable, but a necessity. Washington's guests embraced the opportunity to see the city thoroughly.

The electric illuminations of the public buildings along the line of march of the inaugural parade, which have proved so attractive to the thousands of visitors, were turned on again tonight. The streets were thronged with people, most of whom spent much of their time within the precincts of the court of history, where the electrical display was particularly pleasing. Most of the members of the Tippecanoe club of Cleveland left the city for their homes today. The Republican Glee club of Columbus, O., spent a busy day serenading a number of the prominent officials, among whom were Secretary Taft, Senators Dick and Foraker and Vice President Fairbanks. They will leave the city for home tomorrow.

PRESIDENT'S INAUGURATION CELEBRATED IN BERLIN

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

BERLIN, March 5.—The inauguration of President Roosevelt was widely celebrated, not only by American citizens here, but also by many Germans, and flags were flying from hundreds of private residences. In the evening the Hotel Reichshof was crowded with both Americans and Germans and the toasts wishing the president all success during his term of office were legion.

The celebration lasted until daylight this morning and when Rigo, the gypsy ex-husband of Clara Ward, who conducts the orchestra at the Hotel Reichshof, played a march of his own composition, entitled "Our President," pandemonium broke loose and the cheering seemed as if it would never stop. The march had to be played over and over again until the musicians had to stop from mere exhaustion. The American ambassador, Charlemagne Tower, said that the enthusiasm exceeded anything he had ever seen anywhere.

PARIS, March 5.—President Roosevelt's inaugural address is the subject of much comment by the newspapers here. The Temps characterizes it as a triumphal hymn to the American nation's grandeur and prosperity.

The Journal Des Debats says: "President Roosevelt's address shows confidence in himself and also in the nation's destinies."

The Patrie says that the address is a highly inspired manifesto, and that President Roosevelt is conscious of the role which he is called upon to play and also of his country's mission toward humanity.

PITTSBURGH DETECTIVES PICK UP ALLEGED THIEVES

McQuaide and Elmore Do a Good Piece of Work During the Inaugural Parade.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Supt. Thomas McQuaide and Detective William Elmore of Pittsburgh picked up two "goods guns" on Pennsylvania avenue yesterday while the parade was going past. The prisoners are now in jail here; they have been photographed for the local rogues' gallery and tomorrow they will be arraigned in court and will probably get sentences for vagrancy, ranging from 15 days to six months.

Samuel Kaufmann and Jacob Fisher are the names given by the prisoners, the former from New York and the latter from Chicago. Kaufmann's picture is in the New York gallery, but little is known of Fisher. So far as known they had not done any work here, but they evidently were not here for their health and the interruption of McQuaide and Elmore doubtless saved some people their pocketbooks.

Capt. Boardman, chief of the Washington detectives, is pleased at the capture and that he appreciates the importance of it is shown by the fact that the prisoners will be held on the charge of vagrancy.

BIG CITY BOOM BY TARIFF CLUB

Distributed Thousands of Cards in Washington, Announcing Its Position.

RETURN FROM INAUGURATION

Many Pittsburghers who attended the inauguration at Washington returned to the city yesterday, and during the day the local railroad stations were crowded. The Young Men's Republican Tariff club came in over the Pennsylvania last evening and marched in a body to their club house in Third avenue. It was the first inauguration the club had attended in a body and all the members were well satisfied with the showing they made.

W. R. Brown, president of the club, had charge of the delegation. Last evening he said the club was well taken care of as to position in the parade and all the men who went with the delegation are so well satisfied with the treatment they received that future inaugurations will be attended. Maj. Brown said that after the Tariff club had passed the president's stand every member raised his umbrella of black and gold, the club's colors, which are also the official colors of the city, and the impression was so striking that the Tariff club was afterward told that the president called the attention of his family to the salute and all in the stand applauded.

Advertised Greater Pittsburgh.

While in Washington the Tariff club made it known to people from every state in the union that Pittsburgh should be noticed on the map. Early on Saturday afternoon thousands of people along the route of parade were picking up cards that were being distributed everywhere by men wearing silk hats and handsome black overcoats. The cards bore the inscription:

"We Are for Greater Pittsburgh."

"That's a Pittsburgh crowd. I wonder what this means?" was asked from the capitol out Pennsylvania avenue, to the White House. Those who were curious enough to inquire were quickly and politely informed that Pittsburgh was really the greatest city in the United States, and that the annexation of several adjoining municipalities would entitle her to her rightful place in the procession of big cities of the world.

"That's an enterprising way to advertise, anyhow," was the usual reply.

The Tariff club took thousands of these cards to Washington. If there is any doubt in the minds of Senators Knox and Penrose, or if any of the Philadelphia politicians with influence at Harrisburg hesitate to lend aid to the Greater Pittsburgh bill, the little cards showed at least consolidation was so much desired that the fact was being industriously advertised in the nation's capital.

Perhaps the Tariff club accomplished little by declaring its attitude in a city where all nations were represented, but what they did was indicative of the enterprise of the men who are in the organization and of their sincerity in advocating Greater Pittsburgh.

The provisional regiment, which was composed of local guardsmen, returned to Pittsburgh from the inauguration over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad late evening. The regiment was made up of two companies of the Tenth regiment and two of the Fourteenth regiment.

The Commercial club, a colored organization, also returned to the city by way of the Baltimore & Ohio during the day.

Americus Club on the Road.

The Americus club members are scheduled to arrive at Union station from Washington at 7:15 a. m. today. Another section of the same train is bringing west the members of the Tippecanoe club of Cleveland. The club is expected to pass through the Pittsburgh Union station at 7:15 a. m. The Tippecanoe club was on the train which crashed into the Engineers' battalion, Ohio National Guard, Friday night at Clifton station, near Emsworth, and killed and injured many.

Many special trains were run westward yesterday over the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroads, and all were loaded with people returning from Washington. The trains arriving in Pittsburgh were from 15 to 25 minutes late. The Pennsylvania limited arrived 25 minutes late at Union station.

Capt. F. M. Fanning, a member of Gov. Herrick's staff, and now senior captain of the "Engineers" battalion, passed through Pittsburgh at 2 a. m. yesterday on his way to Cleveland from Washington. Capt. Fanning missed being in the wreck of his battalion owing to his having gone to the inauguration with the staff of Gov. Herrick of Ohio.

PANIC IN OLD IROQUOIS.

Fire in Adjoining Building Caused Actors to Rush Frantically from Their Dressing Rooms.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Ten minutes after the patrons of the matinee performance at Hyde & Behman's music hall had been dismissed today, smoke from a fire in an adjoining building penetrated the stage of the playhouse and caused a panic among the actors and actresses, who were still in their dressing rooms.

The music hall is the old Iroquois theater, and the clanging of fire bells and the smell of smoke were such vivid reminders of the catastrophe of December 30, 1903, that the attaches of the theater became frightened and made a rush for the exits. Many of the players were but half clad, but all of them escaped from the place without injury. It was soon discovered that there was no danger of the theater proper catching fire.

BATTLE ABOUT MUKDEN

sition was suspended toward Friday evening, but a renewal of it is expected. Their operations on our left flank were also suspended Friday evening and it was noticed that the Japanese troops opposite Kiotaidzu were falling back. Maj. Gen. Schatiloff and Col. Kurko were among Friday's wounded. Today (Saturday), the advanced guard of the enemy which is enveloping our right flank was noticed between the Mudken-Simintin road and the Hun river, 5½ miles from Mukden station.

"The Japanese today captured Suchudzia, but have not advanced further. They also captured Lanschanpa after hard fighting.

"The Japanese advance on the Shakhe station was commenced at 5 o'clock this morning, but has been suspended. The enemy has been driven back by volley firing by our advance guards. Two Japanese attacks on Putiloff hill at 11 p. m. Friday and one at 1 o'clock this morning were repulsed."

In a later dispatch of the same date, Gen. Kuropatkin says: "The enemy renewed the attack on the Kandolesan position but was beaten back at 8 o'clock this morning with great loss. Altogether the Japanese delivered 13 charges. The attacks have since been suspended. Two attacks on the Kutilint position at 2 o'clock this morning were repulsed. The night and day were comparatively quiet on our extreme left. Our detachment at Kuchlatze (about 22 miles east of Liao-Yang), advanced somewhat during the night."

FATE OF RUSSIAN ARMY HANGS IN THE BALANCE

Kuropatkin Beats Back the Japanese Wave Threatening to Roll Over Mukden.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, March 6.—3:25 a. m.—The fate of Gen. Kuropatkin and his army hangs in the balance today, depending on the result of the fighting almost in the outskirts of Mukden. According to latest reports this morning the fighting went well for the Russians, who beat back the wave that threatened to roll over Mukden as it had over the fortifications of Port Arthur; but nothing is known as to what is going on beyond the line of breakers, whether part of Gen. Nogi's force is in full rush for Tie pass or whether the Japanese have staked all in a cast against Mukden.

Imminence of the peril on the west wing has withdrawn attention from the operations on the center and left, where the fighting has been extremely heavy, and on the left especially, where the Japanese gains are sufficiently great to cause apprehension to themselves. Military critics here point out that the Japanese have put themselves in a critical position by the extreme extension of their lines, laying themselves open as they did at Liao-Yang to the possibility of a most effective counterstroke and probable defeat if Gen. Kuropatkin should be able to launch a column against a weak link in the chain. In other respects the situation also resembles that at Liao-Yang, the Japanese making a costly "demonstration" to hold the Russians in their fortifications on the center and throwing away the lives of thousands, in order to give the flanking force an opportunity to administer a telling blow.

A feature of all accounts of the fighting reaching St. Petersburg is the emphasis laid on the awful carnage. There is reference after reference to dead piled high on the ground over which an attack was delivered, strewing breastworks, almost hiding abatis from sight and even being used by the Japanese to construct hasty entrenchments. The Russian losses on both flanks are conceded to be enormous, but it is claimed that the defenders of center suffered comparatively light by the Japanese bombardment and beating off the Japanese attack.

China Protests Against Japan.

TOKYO, March 5.—It is understood that China has lodged a protest against Japan, alleging infringement of Chinese neutrality by the occupation of Simmintin. The government has not indicated its attitude.

MAY BE MOVING FOR TIE PASS

Believed in Mukden the Japanese Were Sending a Formidable Force There.

FIGHTING AT OTHER POINTS

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

MUKDEN, March 5.—(Delayed in transmission.)—The fighting at Putiloff hill and on the center closed at dark on Thursday, when it was confined chiefly to the west, where the Japanese are occupying Simintin. Two companies abolished up the Mukden road from Sifangtai without being arrested, though the Cossacks had been in touch with the Japanese advanced posts for two days.

On March 2 several divisions gave battle west of Mukden, from which city the bursting of shrapnel could plainly be seen. Mukden, which was thrown into confusion, recovered today when it became known that the Japanese had been repulsed. The prisoners captured show that the imperial guards' division, formerly of Gen. Kuroki's army, with a few other troops made the two attacks of the last 60 hours on the Russian center which have already been reported and kept up a furious demonstration while the Japanese flanks pushed back the Russian right and left flanks.

The Russian casualties on March 1 and 2 are reported to have been 100 in the center, while the Japanese are believed to have lost more than 1,000. Information obtained indicates that only three divisions of the Japanese army are engaged, and it is believed that a formidable force of Japanese is on the way to Tie pass.

The beginning of the withdrawal of the Russian right flank on March 1 precipitated a battle at Chantan, west of Sandepas, when the right flank was ordered to fall back fighting to Taotaitzu, near Natsran. On March 2 the Russians captured some machine guns and took a number of prisoners of Gen. Nogi's Port Arthur army. The Russians lost extensively, although they destroyed an entire Japanese regiment before Chantan with shrapnel and burned all the forage in the villages north of the Hun river. The Japanese attacked Chantan from Sandepas simultaneously with an astounding advance from Liao-Yang, the impression being that the Simintin railway was being employed by them as a line of communication.

WITH RUSSIAN HEADQUARTERS, RUAN MOUNTAIN, March 5.—(Delayed in Transmission.)—At nightfall yesterday (Thursday) flashes in the sky disclosed that a bombardment was in progress along the eastern mountain position. At 8 o'clock Thursday evening the cannonading was renewed in the center, continuing with vigor until the middle of the afternoon today, at which time it had almost completely subsided.

The Japanese made two infantry charges against Putiloff hill the night of March 2. The Russians report that both attacks were repulsed, with small Russian loss. It is also reported that ground lost on the extreme east has been regained.

SERGIUS FOUGHT ASSEMBLY.

If He Had Not Done So, His Life Might Have Been Spared.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 6.—It has been learned that the emperor three months ago decided to issue the rescript granting an elective assembly, but the late Grand Duke Sergius and M. Pobedonostoff, procurator of the Holy synod, fought it until he held off and Prince Sviatopolik-Mirsky, the minister of the interior, resigned. If he had issued it, Grand Duke Sergius might not have been murdered.

The expected strike disturbances at Warsaw and St. Petersburg did not occur yesterday.

G. W. VANDERBILT TO BE SPONSOR

Will Be Financial Backer for Appearance of Pittsburgh Orchestra at Biltmore, N. C.

CONCERT IN HIS MANSION

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

ASHEVILLE, N. C., March 5.—Society people of this city have not become so accustomed to the presence here of George W. Vanderbilt, whose beautiful summer home, "Biltmore," lies a mile to the south, that they were not incapable of treating as somewhat of a sensation the announcement that he would stand sponsor and financial backer for the appearance here on April 28, of Pittsburgh's famous musical organization, the orchestra, with Max Gadski as soloist.

Mr. Vanderbilt will on that date, moreover, throw open for inspection by the public the greater part of his beautiful mansion, justly considered the finest home on the American continent.

Concert in Banquet Hall.

The interest is increased a thousandfold by the further announcement that Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt will likewise serve refreshments on that evening, and so it will in many ways partake of a party by Asheville's millionaire resident. The concert will be given in the immense and beautifully furnished banquet hall, capable of seating easily 1,500 persons. After the concert and after the serving of refreshments, the tapestry gallery, library and apartments on the main floor will be thrown open.

It is a mile or two from the entrance of the estate to the house. To transport the immense throng of people from the gate, where the car stops, to the mansion was one of the first problems attacked by Mr. Vanderbilt, with the result that he has announced that covered carriages will be provided for the convenience of guests who do not arrive in their own conveyance.

Admission to Be Charged.

This is in addition to the usual livery service of the city and gives assurance that everyone will get there.

The path to Mr. Vanderbilt's fireside is not entirely strewn with roses, however, for an admission fee of $5 will be charged for the privilege of hearing the Pittsburgh orchestra and of seeing Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt and their beautiful home, as well as of partaking of their hospitality. The proceeds of the concert will, after the expense of bringing the orchestra here is deducted, be given to the Clarence Barker hospital, established by Mr. Vanderbilt himself, and the Mission hospital in Asheville.

The concert is already looked forward to as the most considerable social event given in Asheville since Mr. Vanderbilt singled out this section of the country as his summer home. In the light of that fact, the charge of admission is expected to be considered a trivial matter.

I could not make this offer—a full dollar's worth free—if some were not ultimately benefited. It is not a trick to get the address of sufferers, but the honest desire of every one. The cause of kidney trouble for ALWAYS in those nerves. The only way to cure kidney trouble is by strengthening and vitalizing and restoring those failing nerves. That is exactly what my remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—does. Therefore I can make this offer with the certain knowledge that every kidney sufferer who takes this remedy will be helped.

When I say "nerves," I do not mean the ordinary nerves of feeling, thought, action. I mean the automatic nerves, which never sleep day or night, and govern, control and operate every vital process of life. These are the master nerves. To kidneys are their slaves. Treat the master nerves and the slaves will subdue, very soon. Yet when they are strong, you are well; when they are not, you suffer and die.

LONG SERVICE OF MR. WOODBURN

Sandusky Street Baptist Church (Allegheny) Celebrates Anniversary of His Pastorate.

WAS IMPORTANT OCCASION

The Rev. Dr. Benjamin Franklin Woodburn and the congregation of the Sandusky Street Baptist church, Allegheny, yesterday celebrated the thirty-fifth anniversary of Dr. Woodburn's pastorate. The event was more remarkable because it marked the advent of the 70th year of the congregation's existence and Dr. Woodburn's 72d birthday.

No special ceremonies were arranged for the day except that the church choir was augmented and the services of an orchestra engaged. The music was the feature of the morning and afternoon services. In the morning Dr. Woodburn preached a sermon that gave an illustration of the lessons to be learned from the experiences of the years that have passed. Much of the history of the church in the past 35 years was told in Dr. Woodburn's address, that had a profound effect, especially on those who have been associated with the pastor for many years.

It was announced at the conclusion of the morning service that the church had been cleared of debt. A week ago there was outstanding a mortgage of $4,000, assumed 12 years ago when the church building was erected. During the week the money was raised quietly among the members, and it was with a grateful feeling of pride that Dr. Woodburn told yesterday that the congregation owed nothing. The Rev. A. J. Bousall, the assistant pastor, preached the evening sermon.

Dr. Woodburn was ordained pastor of the Sandusky Street church in March, 1870. It is remarkable that during the years since there has never been any dissension or lack of harmony in the congregation, a fact due largely to the kindly disposition and tactful manner of the pastor.

Dr. Woodburn was born in Shousetown in 1832 and for some years was a captain on the boats plying the Allegheny, Mississippi and Missouri rivers. He was graduated from Jefferson college and later from the Western Theological seminary. For several years he had a charge at Mt. Pleasant.

His record with the Sandusky Street church is a remarkable one. During his years of service he officiated at 922 funerals and 623 marriages. Of the 388 members who were in the church 35 years ago 30 are still living. C. W. Cooper, aged 84 years, at present a deacon of the church, held the same position when Dr. Woodburn was installed. W. F. Bown of Pittsburgh is the other survivor of the eight deacons who were in the church in the first year of Dr. Woodburn's pastorate. Since its organization the church has given over $210,000 to charitable purposes. After the services last night Dr. Woodburn held an informal reception in the church parlors, where he received the congratulations of hundreds of friends.

The Rev. Dr. W. A. Stanton of the Shady Avenue Baptist church, celebrated the 15th anniversary of his pastorate yesterday, preaching a special anniversary sermon at the morning service.

HEALTH GAVE WAY WHEN SENTENCE WAS PRONOUNCED

After Magistrate Stewart had sentenced Minnie Madden to 60 days in the workhouse yesterday morning, the woman became so sick that she had to be taken to the Homeopathic hospital. Kate Dunarry, with whom she had been fighting, received a similar sentence, but managed to preserve her health. William Hanlon was fined $50 or 90 days on complaint of his wife, who said he had abused the family.

Grand Opera Seat Sale.

After a very gratifying sale of season tickets to subscribers of last year and a great number of persons who had not previously been season ticket holders, the sale of single tickets for the coming season of grand opera by the Conried Metropolitan Opera House Company begins this morning at Hamilton's music store. Special arrangements have been made to handle the line of ticket purchasers and each person in the line will be given a number in order to facilitate matters and to insure fair play. Good seats are still procurable in every part of the house for each one of the five performances.

RABBIS INDORSE HOSPITAL PLAN

Heads of Jewish Congregations Address Enthusiastic Turner Hall Gathering.

DR. LEVY'S STIRRING PLEA

"If this hospital is built, let it be built as a thank offering to God that we live in a land of freedom, where all men are kings and emperors, where liberty is inhaled with every breath, and where conscience can voice itself and religion of whatsoever name is equally protected. Let it not be founded on bigotry or prejudice, nor let it go forth that this is to be a hospital for the Jews. Rather let it be built as our testimonial of thanksgiving and as our part in the beneficent endeavor all about us to uplift the fallen and to minister to the needy."

With this eloquent plea the Rev. Dr. J. Leonard Levy of Reform Congregation Rodeph Shalom closed an address, remarkable for its eloquence and lofty character, before the meeting called last night at Turner hall, Forbes street, in the interest of the Montefiore Hospital association. About 300 Jewish people were in attendance, and the speakers included Dr. Levy, Rabbi Ashinsky of Beth Hamedrosh congregation, and Rabbi Fried of the Tree of Life congregation. Rabbi Sivitz of Sharah Torah congregation, and Judge Josiah Cohen, the latter programed as chairman, were unable to attend; both sent letters of regret.

Wants Hospital Devoted to Race.

President S. Davis of the Montefiore association called the meeting to order, briefly outlining the plan of organization adopted by the society. He then introduced Rabbi Fried. The speaker declared it to be a reproach to the Jews of Pittsburgh that in a community numbering so many of their race in comfortable circumstances there was no hospital managed by Jews to minister to the needs of Jews. It were better, he said, to build fewer synagogues and erect a temple to charity. The keynote of his appeal was that the Jews should have a distinctively Jewish hospital.

Rabbi Ashinsky spoke in the Jewish language. He would not, he said, make his hearers ill by a long address—the hospital was not yet finished. He spoke for the orthodox Jews, many of them residents of the tenement districts, sorely needing treatment by men of their faith and ministrations among those of their own race. He paid tribute to the good work of existing hospitals, and closed with a fervid appeal for support for the enterprise.

Dr. Levy began by confessing that he had never convinced himself that a Jewish hospital was needed in Pittsburgh; it was not an argument that appealed to him to say that because the Presbyterians had a hospital or the Catholics supported hospitals the Jewish people of Pittsburgh ought to build one. It was his experience that the existing hospitals ministered alike to Jew and Gentile, rich and poor, without distinction to race or color.

Should Aid General Charity.

He was proud to bear testimony to the broad-mindedness of Pittsburgh's hospitals. Nor did he see any strength in the mere argument that Because Pittsburgh Jews were thrifty and prosperous they should erect a hospital of their own. It was only the argument the Jews of the city and county ought to follow the noble example of their Christian fellow citizens and do what they can to assist in charitable works that enlisted his sympathies with the movement. The doctor advised prudence in undertaking the erection of a hospital, urged economy and moderation, and above all appealed for broad-mindedness of purpose and action as against racial pride.

He closed with a plea for financial assistance and was given a remarkable ovation when he concluded. The last speaker of the evening was Henry Jackson, first vice president of the Montefiore association. His brief address was devoted to an earnest suggestion for united and harmonious endeavor to consummate the objects of the association.

During the meeting a number of subscription blanks were passed among those present and the response was generous. The Hebrew Ladies' Hospital Aid society, in connection with which the Montefiore association is working, has a cash fund on hand amounting to about $10,900. There are also about $9,000 in pledges in the hands of the society, exclusive of the amount subscribed last night. The society has purchased and paid for a suitable site at Reed and Robert streets. The promoters of the project are sanguine of its success. Another public meeting will be held soon.

Paul S. Leinbach, who was called to the First church, Easton, Pa., last October.

HAMLET.

Mr. Mantell, by request, gives us "Hamlet" this week, and it goes without saying that the play will be appreciably received by a large attendance.

Probably no other play by Shakespeare is so universally popular as "Hamlet"—probably no two characters are more quoted than Hamlet and Polonius. Polonius, especially, is full of wise saws. You should read the play if you intend going to the Alvin this week, and you can read it from a neatly-bound copy containing preface, glossary, notes, etc., by Gollaway, steel frontispiece, and we will charge you only 25 Cents.

We Have Much

Good News This Morning,

But the Headliners Are

The Spring Jackets at $5

Worth $15 to $35,

AND

The White Waists, $1 to $6.75

Worth From $2 to $12.

Two garments of feminine apparel that women are now discussing daily from the point of fashion.

The Jackets at $5.00.

There is not a jacket in the collection but what the cloth of which it is made is worth from twice up to four times more than what we are asking.

All the jackets are in the jaunty hip length. As far as style goes they represent about what has been brought out for Spring, with the exception that the sleeves are a trifle smaller.

The materials are light-weight broadcloth, cheviot, venetian and covert, and the colors are tan and black. All the jackets are lined either with excellent silk or excellent satin. The size range is from 32 to 44 inclusive.

There are thousands of women who need an everyday jacket and do not care about paying more than $5.00 for one. This is their opportunity. Details were given Saturday evening.

The White Waists From $1.00 to $6.75

These are a manufacturer's sample lot, and, as said in the general head, are worth from $2.00 along and up to $12.00. We have sold thousands and thousands of white waists the last two weeks, different grades for different underprices, and no woman who has bought of these waists but what will confirm us when we say there were never such bargains before offered.

In this particular lot the sizes are mostly 34, 36 and 38, the finishes are embroidery and laces, and the materials are French batiste, nainsook, swiss, linen and muslin.

Some have fronts of all-over embroidery, others have fronts in pretty handkerchief and lace effects.

They are all spic-and-span sample waists, and being samples, you may well imagine they have the best touches of workmanship.

Our Featherweight and Ideal Umbrellas.

Either of Them for $3.00.

Why pay $5.00 when $3.00 buys as good an umbrella as anyone need want—man or woman? Lots of people who intended to pay $5.00 after looking at these $3.00 Umbrellas have decided in favor either of the Featherweight or the Ideal.

The Featherweight is a fine, close quality, pure silk taffeta with tape edge.

The Ideal is a tape edge union taffeta which is thought to wear somewhat better than pure silk.

Both are finely finished and have imported natural handles.

Demonstration of Aluminum Ware.

Anyone who takes the slightest interest in matters pertaining to the household will surely be interested in the demonstration of Aluminum Cooking Utensils.

Aluminum Cooking Vessels have so many points of superiority that it would be difficult to recall them all.

In the demonstration it is proved that it is impossible to burn aluminum cooking utensils—they may be subjected to a great heat and come forth unscathed. It is proved that they wear longer than any other.

Saucepans, 90c to 95c.
Teakettles, $3.10 to $3.70.
Roast Pans, $1.10 to $1.50.
Coffee Pots, $1.55 to $2.00.
Griddles, $1.30 to $3.00.
Double Boilers, $1.25 to $2.25.

Demonstration of Asbestos Irons.

At last there has been a decided improvement in said irons. It is a much-needed one. The old-fashioned iron retains the heat but a short time and distributes it indiscriminately, burning the hands and the holder.

Asbestos Irons are made scientifically—the heat escapes at only one point—the ironing surface—they never burn the hands.

They cost but very little more than the ordinary kind.

About a dozen different kinds.

Stop in the West Basement and see the demonstration.

Our 50c Dinners.

Monday, March 6, 1905.

The announcement was recently made that Miss Ellen M. Stone, who was ransomed to secure her release from the bandits in the east, was to return to her field as a missionary. No explanation of her extended stay in this country has been made, but is probably contained in the announcement of the death of her aged mother, whom she has been able to comfort in her last days. Whatever the opinion may be about the advisability of Miss Stone's return there can be no doubt about her courage as shown in her willingness to face danger. It is probable that she will not take unnecessary risks, as the large sum gained by her previous abduction will be apt to make her a tempting prize for enterprising brigands.

If Prof. Loeb's contention that he can produce life by chemical fertilization of a sea urchin's eggs proves practical, the discovery will be of even greater importance than the theory of evolution. The trouble with modern discoveries in science is that they are prematurely exploited by enthusiastic investigators and often the conclusions prove false. Prof. Loeb claimed some time ago that he could fertilize the egg, but now he says that in salt water he has produced young by the process. Each new idea of the processes of nature that is made possible tends to strengthen the theory that there is no distinction between the material and divine, but that the power which we have called spiritual permeates our surroundings.

The farewell banquet at Rome to Ambassador Meyer was signalized by the announcement that through the munificence of Henry Walters, J. Pierpont Morgan, W. K. Vanderbilt and others, the American academy has acquired the villa Mirafiori as a permanent home. The place is well known as the home of the morganatic wife of the great Victor Emmanuel, and it is in an advantageous location for the work of the American academy, which is a worthy representative of American scholarship in the ancient center of civilization from which every modern nation has derived the seeds of culture. The honors paid our retiring ambassador were a gratifying assurance of the friendly feelings which exist between this country and Italy, which have been greatly strengthened by the character and ability of our representatives there.

One remarkable feature about the religious revivals which have been in progress in this country and abroad has been the striking results already manifest. In Wales it is said that the income from the sale of liquor has greatly fallen off and that the material directors of manufacturing institutions are commenting on the change in the character of their employes. The religious awakening, moreover, has been such that it has tended to bring together the various denominations. In Boston sectarian exclusiveness appears to have been melting under the fervor of the revival in that city, which curiously enough receives heartiest approval from denominations whose own religious habit is opposed to emotional excitement. Churchmen of all schools of thought appear to be uniting in the common belief that the uplifting of humanity is the main thing and any moral agency which will accomplish that result deserves countenance.

Affairs are not going well with the dual monarchies and their case recalls the proverb of the house divided against itself. Norway is striving to effect a severance from Sweden in its consular representation and the agitation is putting a severe strain upon their dynastic union. Austro-Hungary is torn by the nationalist movement in Hungary, which has created some perplexing administrative problems. The Hungarian diet is to assemble Wednesday and in the meanwhile the sagacious old emperor is endeavoring to form a cabinet which can control the situation. A consideration which keeps the national movement in Hungary in bounds is that once the imperial tie of union is broken they are a crowd of nationalities eager to assert themselves and to claim equal rights with the Magyar element. The empire is a bundle of nationalities and their complete autonomy would mean not only the disruption of the empire, but Hungary also. The Magyar race has displayed marked political capacity and notwithstanding the violence of speech and action in the diet some practical adjustment may be expected under which the imperial administration can be carried on. The tact and wisdom of the emperor is also a great bond of unity, but when Francis Joseph passes away the situation will become perilous in the extreme.

The overtures which Germany is making to our government in regard to a new commercial treaty appear to be a diplomatic maneuver. The German government is perfectly well informed of the situation and knows that there can be no practical expectation of getting a reciprocity treaty of any kind through the senate, but it has recently completed new treaties with Austria, France and Russia, which will be very detrimental to American interests and it is desired to disarm any ill feeling about the matter by showing that Germany is willing to accord this country similar advantages upon a similar basis. This will exhibit our senate, which is not any too popular as it is, as the mark of complaint if our trade suffers. It is a fact that the movement for new commercial treaties among the European countries which has been going on for years past was stimulated by resentment inspired by the treatment experienced by them under the reciprocity schedule of the present tariff act law. In response to the invitation of our government foreign countries negotiated reciprocity treaties with the United States and the senate has never even taken them up for consideration. There has since been a settled determination to show this country that it cannot treat other countries in that style with impunity and the new commercial treaties are expected to make that fact evident.

An Auspicious Inauguration.

The fine weather which accompanied the inauguration will be regarded by millions as another evidence of Roosevelt luck and as a good omen for his administration. March 4 is a time when the weather is apt to be variable and anything may happen, so that people are inclined to draw auguries from the aspect of the day. It is recalled that the bitter cold of Gen. Grant's second inauguration was followed by bad times for the Republican party and that when Cleveland took office the second time there was a zero blizzard which typified the fate that overtook the Democratic party during that administration. Roosevelt weather is now a synonym for a bright day with some clouds and wind, but plenty of cheerful sunshine.

The president will need all his luck for his first administration as the elect of the people to that office. As an accidental president he has already shown his good fortune by being the first vice president ever elected president after having previously held that office. He has strongly established himself in the esteem of the people without regard to party, but he has difficult tasks with which to cope, and at the outset of his administration he is antagonized by the senate upon an issue of vast constitutional importance, the settlement of which will have far-reaching consequences. The Santo Domingo treaty marks a crisis in the policy of the United States, and that will be the leading topic of the extra session upon which the senate enters today. Before it is disposed of a good deal of history may be made and the development of the Constitution may advance another stage.

The Bond Ordinance.

The ordinance which has passed common council and is now before select council providing for the new bond issue, presents in an intensified form all the features to which Controller Larkin objected in the former ordinance. The small change made to correct the defect pointed out by the recent court decision does not affect the general character of the measure. On the other hand, a novelty in municipal finance is introduced by the provision that interest shall run upon the new bonds before they are issued and the city gets the use for which interest is paid. Although it is now March, 1905, the bonds are to be dated October 1, 1904, so that when issued they will carry accrued interest in addition to bearing an unnecessarily high rate of interest. The Republican administration issued the previous filtration loan at 3½ per cent and then sold the bonds at a little above par. The present administration insists upon paying 4 per cent, although the bonds could be marketed at par with a lower rate of interest. Moreover, the bonds are to be sold in a lump instead of being disposed of as needed, although over two millions of money belonging to filtration are now lying idle in the banks chosen by the administration as city depositaries.

It is reasonable to infer that there must be special reasons for this determination to make the bonds carry accumulated interest and bear as high rate of interest as possible, and to heap the proceeds in the city depositaries long in advance of possible demands upon them to meet the cost of building the filtration plant. What those reasons may be must be left to conjecture, but they are certainly not in accord with public interests. Incidentally the proceeding repudiates Controller Larkin's views so pointedly as to suggest that that may have been one of the objects. It seems as if, since the election is over, it was desired to let him know that he has served his turn and that his ideas as to financial policy are of no importance. It must be evident to Mr. Larkin himself by this time that he has overestimated the power of his office to affect the conduct of the administration of which he is a part. There could be no stronger commentary upon the futility of his efforts than the events taking place in councils. Those efforts have not been wanting in energy and perseverance, but all that they have really accomplished is to demonstrate the impossibility of directing municipal policy from the controller's office.

Stricter Steamboat Inspection.

One of the important acts of the Fifty-eighth congress was the amendment of the laws which govern the inspection of steamboats. Such legislation had been urged years ago by the administration, but was neglected by congress in the press of other business until interest in the subject was aroused by the Slocum disaster, by which over 1,000 lives were sacrificed. The new law provides more directly for the punishment of offenders, fixing the liability of owners in case of loss and allowing certain boards to fix the requirements as regards transportation of passengers. Such details as the care of oil rooms and waste, the location of fire buckets, and the accessibility of life preservers are left to these boards to determine. Of special importance is the provision that crews shall have a certain amount of training in order to qualify them for their employment.

The failure to convict the men on the Slocum who were charged with indirect responsibility was due to the indefiniteness of inadequacy of the laws. The new law is not only more stringent in its requirements, but it strengthens administrative authority and thus intensifies administrative responsibility. This gratifying response by congress to the demands of an outraged public opinion will undoubtedly tend to promote the safety of steamboat travel.

A Tremendous Battle Raging.

The world has become so accustomed to Japanese victories that popular interest in the war news has greatly abated and less attention is paid to the operations now going on in Manchuria than was given to much smaller engagements earlier in the war, when it seemed as if Japan was going forth like another David to fight the Russian Goliath. It has since become quite plain that Japan is not a puny foe, no matter what comparison may be made, and that so far as available strength is concerned Russia is the weaker power and not Japan. From the popular point of view the situation has lost its romance. The military experts are, however, watching the course of events with an interest which keeps growing more intense as the Japanese generals display their astounding mastery of the art of war under the conditions established by the latest developments of science.

In mere magnitude of operations the campaign in Manchuria exceeds anything known to military history. Field Marshal Roberts recently illustrated the great change which has taken place since Napoleon's day by pointing out that the battle of Waterloo was fought out between 11:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. over an area three miles in length to one-and-one-half miles in depth. The severest fighting took place along a distance of about one mile. Except for one brief period Wellington and Napoleon were never more than a mile apart and both commanders had the field of operations in their own view and were able to supervise all the operations of their troops. In the battle now raging about Mukden the zone of conflict is over 60 miles in length, and the fighting has been going on for days as part of a connected scheme of operations.

Marshal Oyama appears to have advanced by his usual method of flanking operations conducted by Kuroki, commanding the right wing. Anticipating this movement Gen. Kuropatkin had strongly fortified his lines, and while Gen. Kuroki has gained some successes he has had to pay dearly for them and he is still encountering firm resistance. Marshal Oyama seems to have expected this and shifted the weight of his attack to his left wing, which has crumpled up the Russian right wing, routing some of the divisions composing it. The tenor of the dispatches from both sides indicate that Gen. Kuropatkin is receiving a worse defeat than he has yet experienced and the effect may be crushing. Gen. Kuropatkin has shown great ability in extricating his army from difficult positions, but at present a great disaster to the Russian army seems impending.

National Regulation of Insurance.

National regulation of insurance has been presented as a practical issue by the bill offered by Senator Dryden of New Jersey just before the adjournment of congress. He did so to invite criticism and discussion on the subject. As he is himself a leading insurance man, the measure will have the advantage of friendly representation in the senate in case public opinion shall favor the idea.

For years past life insurance interests have sought the legal status of interstate commerce for their business so as to obtain protection from the exactions of state regulation. That regulation is notoriously expensive and is intentionally made so by a number of states with a view of converting it into a source of revenue, thus making it indirectly a tax upon policyholders. The aggregate amount now paid to state departments is a huge item in the expense of carrying on the life insurance business, and meanwhile state supervision appears to be inadequate to check tendencies which are justly exciting alarm among policyholders. A trusteeship extending over such vast accumulations of wealth as now form the assets of insurance companies should be strictly guarded by law, and means should be provided by which the opportunities of individual caprice or delinquency would be more closely restricted. If the business were brought under the exclusive control of the national government by being classed as interstate commerce, uniform regulations would be feasible and they are impossible under the present state system. Upon that ground some of the ablest state superintendents of insurance are on record as favoring national control.

Heretofore the courts have rejected the view that insurance transactions form a part of interstate commerce, but if they should be put in that category by law it is held that the courts would not object, as it seems reasonable that congress should have power to define what constitutes interstate commerce, at least to the extent of including all actual contents of interstate commerce. From that point of view there is certainly a strong case in behalf of the bulk of life insurance transactions. Such expansion of legal content is a normal process of development when the movement of public opinion is sufficiently strong and steady to impress jurisprudence. The present tendency of public opinion appears to be in that direction, but national regulation of insurance may be so readily construed as a step toward state insurance as in Germany, Australia and some other countries that there will be much discussion and agitation before any such measure will reach the stage of enactment.

There are quite a number of people writing about Dr. Osler's theories as if they thought the chloroform remedy might be tried profitably in one instance at any rate.

Washington business and social life has quickly returned to normal conditions, but it will take several days for the hotel rates to get back to earth.

"Cutting the Russian wing" in war news parlance is not supposed to be even distantly related to "cutting the pigeon wing."

Mr. Rockefeller's influence among the Sunday schools of Kansas has been reduced materially by recent events.

Washington is happy, even if she does have to wear a bandage on her aching head for several days.

There were quite a number of "also rans" on the bill calendar of congress when the end came.

The New Mexico and Arizona statehood question bids fair to outlive several congresses yet.

Talked of in Gotham

By FRANK A. PARKER.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, March 5.—"Genius—one who gets away with the 'goods'." That is the generally accepted definition of the word among New Yorkers. Of course, this would eliminate all that class of people who believe themselves geniuses yet to be discovered. And the town is full of that sort of people. You meet them in the cafes or in Broadway and they will buttonhole you in an effort to tell you why they have not sold their latest play, their most recent novel or a canvas of unexampled artistic beauty. The undiscovered genius is one of the features of New York that is not fully appreciated by the general run of people, when in fact he is the most interesting character of all the interesting characters that roam the rialto.

One of these chaps seems to be on the eve of being discovered, that is, he may be if he is able to eke out a precarious living until the next theatrical season opens, and his play that has been accepted proves but half as good as he thinks it is. This particular youth has been in the undiscovered genius class for the past five years, and everybody who knows him has wondered how he has managed to live all that time with no apparent means of support. True, he wrote one novel that brought him in $1,000, but that was two years ago, and the money was spent weeks before it was collected. Then he has always been ready to accept invitations to dine at any place, from the rough-and-ready restaurant of Sixth avenue to the best that Broadway affords, and at any time from early morning to long past midnight. He has been just as willing to spend his last $2 note to "blow off" a friend to a dinner, and thereby he has held his friends and his place at the tables of his friends. Should his play prove a success and he thus be dragged from the ranks of the undiscovered to the ranks of fortune's favorites, people will soon forget that he many times lacked a square meal and his great luck—as it will be called—will be the envy of all those who remain among the unsuccessful.

Long on the Rocky Road.

This particular youth comes from a "literary family." Perhaps what convinced him that he was a genius was seeing a literary uncle piling up dollars like some men pile up cord wood. At any rate, the call was too strong to be resisted and he came to New York with fewer possessions than Benjamin Franklin had when he arrived in Philadelphia some years ago. But he had a stock of nerve of the right sort that means more than more money, and here he is yet at the end of five years, and the struggle looks pretty nearly over for him. Of course, there are plays that fail and novels that do not produce enough real money to pay for the paper they are printed on, but the hope that an acceptance brings will serve to goad him on to producing stuff in the interim that will be worth while, and he can be expected to have more than an even break on winning out. And if he wins, all who know him will feel that he gets only what he deserves, for no man in New York has made a braver or harder fight against adverse conditions.

Hacking Out a Living.

The greatest stumbling blocks for the young man who comes to New York to make his way in the literary world are the many opportunities to become a "hack writer," that is, one who will take a contract to write on any subject at a moment's notice, whether he knows anything about it or not, and thus fall into slip-shod ways that will prove his ruin if he persists in it for a few years while waiting for his big opportunity. There are a score of men of brains and cleverness in the city who were a few years ago hailed by their closest friends—those who truly knew them—as coming geniuses, but they fell into the ranks of the hacks, and hacks they will be to the end. The young playwright has had such chances, he has been offered enough money to live on and live well if he would produce so many columns a week, but he had the nerve to refuse and take his chance of starving. And it takes a mighty strong nerve to swallow everything but good food and pass up what looks like easy living for months and even years.

Market Is Hard to Reach.

"It is a mighty sight easier to write a play than to sell it," said this same youth the other evening. "My only hope is that this play will prove a success; then I have two others that I consider just as good to hand out." Perhaps he doesn't know; few men are competent to judge their own product. But he is right about the sale of a play after it is written. Most plays today are written to order by men who have won their reputations after a hard battle. There is a play—probably several of them—now running on Broadway, that never would have been staged had it been offered by a man, unknown to fame, and the managers would have been wise to reject it. But they sometimes make the mistake of failing to see the good play. There is one manager on Broadway whose "luck" is proverbial because he has had only one real failure in his managerial career. Perhaps it is luck, but perhaps he is blessed with the far-seeing eye.

Mrs. Fiske's "Lucky Catch."

Probably the most successful play now running in New York is "Leah Kleschna," at the Manhattan theater. The play was hawked around Broadway for months by its author, Mr. McClellan, and four astute managers refused to take it. Then Mrs. Fiske read and promptly accepted it, although it does not give her a star part, but is rather a stock-company play. Its success is so great that two managers almost reached the courts in an effort to secure the British rights. Then there are the Shaw plays, which no one could see with a spy glass until Arnold Daly produced "Candida" last year on a "shoestring capital," and this year Mr. Daly had the pick of managerial talent for any Shaw play he desired to produce. He chose one that even Mr. Shaw declared was only a "reading play," and not actable, and yet it has been running for three months, with promise of filling the house for the balance of the season.

Takes Nerve to Be a Genius.

The first requisite of the genius is, of course, the ability to do things, but certainly after that his chief necessity is nerve and a determination to stick it out. There is a young man from Pennsylvania here now who is living on $5 a week and a hope for the future. Sometimes he picks up a few dollars extra during the week, but if he does not, he is just as cheerful and apparently as happy as any millionaire in Fifth avenue. He may never "set the world on fire," as the saying is, but he is sure to be far above the general average some day, because he has the nerve and the belief in himself that no rebuff can kill. Therefore he deserves to win.

The Quiet Observer.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

He never smiled, and that is why d'Albert was received so often.

Nor could you blame him—at least you wouldn't if you had seen those who were doing the clapping and known why they did it.

"He never smiled once," said a flat-faced girl in her teens. "He better 'im out again," and with that she began clapping furiously. Then a few others took it up and kept it up until the dapper little gentleman made his appearance.

"Did you ever!" exclaimed the young person with the opera glass. "Not even a little bit of a smile. 'Ee fetch 'im out again."

Again she led the claque, which was taken up by a few stragglers here and there, and kept up until he reappeared. Again she leveled her glass and watched for a smile.

"Did he smile? Did you see it?" asked several of the curious ones.

"He never smiled a bit. 'Ee make him smile," and again she began clapping her red and smarting hands together with great vigor. There were a few whispered "Shames," but the girl persisted and was supported by a few others. He didn't come out promptly, so she clapped the louder and told her side partner to "clap real hard," which she did, but with evident reluctance. Finally he came out, but his manner showed that he was one half mad and 'tother half disgusted.

Again the girl leveled her gold-mounted opera glasses and craned her neck in search of that missing smile.

"There's something in the corner of his mouth, but I don't think it is a smile," she observed sadly as she settled into her seat.

"Now don't that just too provoking," exclaimed her partner a rather flank-faced girl of more mature age, with a rapidly receding chin.

"Did you ever see anything like it?" remarked a lady in the next seat behind. "He might have smiled just once, I think."

"He did, just a little," said the little one.

"No, he didn't," replied another, "for I was watching with all my eyes. It was just a little pucker in the left-hand corner of his mouth."

"O gee! but my hands burn," and with that the young thing with the opera glasses began blowing her puffy, red paws.

"I've seen a great many prima donnas, but never seen one that wouldn't smile before. It's unique, don't you think?" observed a very proper-looking female personage just in front of the youthful clapper.

* * * * *

That clapping episode was the one thing that marred the perfection of the orchestra concert on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. d'Albert had given a number consisting of two solos and had graciously accepted a hearty round of applause. This young person noticed that he didn't smile, and when recalled, apparently with the hope that he would play some more, she again missed the smile. This seemed to interest her and she set in to make him smile.

Three times she led the claque and brought him to the front of the stage, but never a smile; only quick, jerky nods right, left and center.

That the girl and those around her who joined the claque were not interested in Mr. d'Albert's fine playing was clearly shown by their gazing idly around with their opera glasses and calling attention to certain persons in other parts of the house while he was at the piano.

Claquers never are interested, and generally because they are not capable of comprehending or of taking a real interest in anything above the commonest sort of commonplace. At this they applaud, but at all other times they merely claque, finding more interest in the noise they make than in the best sort of performance.

* * * * *

No doubt Mr. d'Albert knows the difference between applause and claquing, and will be kind enough to discriminate in this instance.

The claquer, as all good people know, is not only a nuisance, but a pest, a disturber, a sinner. For is it not a sin to destroy or to spoil or to mar the work of an artist? As well throw dust, or even mud, on a fine painting, or jest and make silly remarks about a well-written poem, or giggle in the midst of a clever, pathetic scene on the stage.

But what else can you expect from a claquer? It is usually a shallow person, so shallow that you can readily see the mediocrity to its fore. If you haven't noted this particular characteristic in it, look for it the next time you are in sight of one.

You may have noticed that a claquer does not like to make a finale when it breaks loose, but stops and bangs away until it has aroused others of its kind. Sometimes it has been known to show signs of being ashamed, and will try to hide its identity by "screeching" behind the couch and working its hands under cover.

Those who appreciate good acting and good music will highly appreciate the management of a theater or music hall that will arrest and lead out these disturbing pests.

* * * * *

It may be argued that the claquers who marred the effect of Mr. d'Albert's splendid piano recitals were too young and foolish to know better.

If so they were too young and foolish to attend a concert, and should have been left at home, or better still, sent to a kindergarten to be taught manners.

Or it may be said that it was only a joke, or rather a little lark by which they hoped to compel the distinguished artist to unbend a bit and smile, just to please the little girls. Indeed it is not impossible that some fond mammas will agree with these obscuring girls that it was real mean in him not to crack even a weenty-teenty smile for their gratification.

Merited applause is not only an encouragement, a real help to a performer, but a satisfaction to an appreciative audience. No one begrudges it, nor complains about it, not even those who do not unbend sufficiently to clap or stamp. Indeed, every person in a mixed audience will not be enthused by the same acts or songs or performances.

Now you will ask if there is no way by which the claquer may be suppressed.

The claquer, as such, has been done away with to a very large extent, but the individual claquer, the silly person, is still with us and is likely to remain until some sort of effective weeding-out process is adopted by managers.

There now, don't ask why parents don't see to it that their children shall behave properly in public.

A great many parents feel, or at least seem to think, that what their children do is all right. Others can't see that theirs are offensive, and if such a thing is intimated they will fling back that it is not the fault of the children, but a lack of good taste and common sense on the part of those who complain.

There isn't much use in talking to the parents of ill-trained children, and the law will not permit the use of a club.

We have a great deal of talk about home training, but the fact remains that all the training in manners and politeness that very many children get is what is given to them at school, and that is precious little.

Nor can you greatly blame the teachers, for they are loaded to the limit with a variety of imperative stunts, many of which are of far less real value to the child, and later to the man and woman, and finally to the social world, than are politeness and good manners.

Go for the wiseacres who make the schools.

To Mr. Roosevelt

Greetings on His Inaugural.

A President With Ideals.

New York Tribune (Rep.):

The last three years are an earnest of the future. Years of peace and of progress. Years of that true conservatism which preserves institutions by correcting the abuses which grow up about them and tend to prevent indiscriminate handling. President Roosevelt has the enthusiastic support of the great majority of the American people, Democrats and Republicans alike, in his declaration for "a square deal," and his determination to see his powers to give every man what he is entitled to under the law. He has steadily followed this policy since he took office, in spite of all the outcry of those who wanted to misinterpret the law in their own private interests. The people have supported him in that policy not at all in a spirit of reckless radicalism, but with the serious aim of preserving under new conditions the essentials of our old individual liberty and equality, and adapting our laws to safeguard them against new dangers. Theodore Roosevelt is a president with ideals—ideals in which most of, found the salvation of the American nation, placed as its people are by material ambitions.

Makes the Senate Restive.

Philadelphia Inquirer (Rep.):

There are signs that the senate is becoming somewhat restive under him, it is true, but there cannot be any serious misunderstandings between them. The senate is a slow-moving body, set in its ways and given to conservatism bordering sometimes on timidity, on the other hand the president is progressive and has progressive views. If he succeeds in stirring the senators up a bit, no harm will be done.

Held in Affectionate Regard.

Philadelphia Press (Rep.):

If today were eighty days instead of the day of his inauguration, one can almost without exaggeration say he would come near to carrying the nation as a whole, so strong, so deep and so broad is the vast tide of public approval and support which sets toward him. Vivid, impetuous, high-minded and devoted to lofty ideals, his picturesque personality, troubled though his course sometimes be by the defects of these qualities, hold and at the right decisive, adds immeasurably to the influence and effect of his party principles. Men not only admire and are loyal to him as president, but they have for him a vivid affection and a keen regard as a man among men.

He Will Make History.

New York World (Dem.):

Much history has been made in these four years.

Mr. Roosevelt is the first of the accidental presidents to become president in his own right. He has behind him the largest popular majority ever given to a presidential candidate. His personal popularity has been exceeded by that of none of his predecessors since Washington. In seeking congressional support for his measures he is not obliged to rely upon the members of his own party; even his political opponents have knocked for admission to political fellowship with him. Much history will be made in the next four years.

Offers Its Best Wishes.

Philadelphia Record (Dem.):

If President Roosevelt should retain a level head no thanks would be due to the host of income-bearers who have flocked to Washington to acclaim him as though he were a triumphing Caesar. That he may practice self-restraint; that he may always remember that he is the representative of the whole people and execute his office as a great and responsible trust—these are the best wishes anybody could offer him on the occasion of his inauguration into the presidency; and these "The Record" offers in all sincerity.

An Unexampled Opportunity.

New York Sun (Rep.):

Four years may or may not modify Mr. Roosevelt. It is reasonably certain that they cannot modify the Constitution. He had an almost unexampled opportunity to be "president of the whole people." In what he proposes or attempts of good he will have no heartier support than ours, and we shall continue to deal plainly with him, as with an erring friend, whenever he needs faithful wounds.

No One Doubts His Patriotism.

Philadelphia Ledger (Ind.):

There are some, even among those who warmly supported Mr. Roosevelt's election, who distrust his political judgment. There is none who doubts the purity of his patriotism, his integrity of purpose, the loftiness of his ideals. These are what the American people have recognized in him, and these are the grounds of their confidence and esteem. If he makes errors he will never be convicted of wrong, never fall through falsehood, meanness, cowardice or sloth.

His Monroe Doctrine Theory.

New York Herald (Dem.):

If President Roosevelt's new fangled "corollary" of the Monroe doctrine is sustained by the ratification of the treaty in its present form the nation will be launched upon a sea of perilous adventure. By the treaty as transmitted to the senate the president agrees that the United States shall undertake to adjust the obligations of the Dominican government to foreign as well as domestic; place its own employes in the custom houses, and collect the revenues, setting aside a portion for the support of the government and distributing the rest among the creditors. More than this, it is agreed that the United States "shall grant such other assistance as the Dominican government may deem proper to restore the credit, preserve the order, increase the efficiency of the civil administration and advance the material progress and welfare of the Dominican republic."

The News Was Suppressed.

Reporters at a college fraternity dinner in an uptown hotel a few nights ago were rubbing their eyes to keep awake under the soporific spell of toasts and grave of honor. A young man, possibly a graduate of a year or so, hurled up to the press table.

"Gentlemen," he gasped, "are any of you classical scholars? If you are"—he didn't wait for a reply—"the log of you is fatal. The Greek motto of our fraternity was inadvertently spoken by one of our orators a few minutes ago. It is sacred to us, a thing we wouldn't tell, even to our wives. We beg of you not to mention the matter in the paper."

The young man was solemnly assured that his wish regarding so great a secret would be respected.—New York Sun.

Slips of the Tongue.

A well known literary man tells the following anecdotes of amusing slips of the tongue:

A certain minister was reading a chapter from the New Testament when his congregation was treated to this surprising version of a famous passage. "And Peter crowed three times and the cock went forth and wept bitterly."

Another story tells of a man who, on being asked concerning his familiarity with music, replied that he knew but two tunes, "God Save the Weasel" and "Pop Goes the Queen."—Harper's Weekly.

The Clergy and Politics.

If some of the clergy, in the role of amateur reformers, have misdirected, let the blame rest where it belongs—on the heads of the reformers that rule and rob that unfortunate city. Given decent local government, instead of fostering corruption, the clergy and other amateur reformers would not feel called upon to enter a field in which, by reason of inexperience they are liable to blunder.—Washington Post.

Fondness for Show.

There is a theory that Americans haven't the art of representation; that they are too self-conscious and too much hobbled by democratic simplicity. Yet no people is fonder of uniforms, buttons and parading or more lavish the pomp and circumstance of procession and full regalia.—New York Sun.

Old Men for Wisdom.

Dr. Osler remembers Byron and forgets Tennyson; remembers Webster and forgets Wendell Phillips; remembers Alexander and forgets Wellington. Probably a time doesn't limit us to old men to do all the but he goes further.—St. Louis Republic.

High Geared.

Knicker—How does Jones attain such a speed?

Bocker—He puts his car motor in his pants.

TO MAKE RIGID INVESTIGATION

Commissioner Garfield Has Instituted Inquiry Into Standard Oil Company.

MUCH INFORMATION AT HAND

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Commissioner James R. Garfield of the bureau of corporations has instituted a rigid investigation of the operations of the oil industry in Kansas and contiguous states. In response to a resolution of the house of representatives, introduced by Representative Campbell of Kansas, the investigation of the oil industry will be carried on as rapidly as is consistent with thoroughness. The report of Commissioner Garfield will be made directly to President Roosevelt. Whether it will be made public will lie within the discretion of the chief executive. Depending on the facts developed, it may be turned over to the department of justice for such action as the attorney general may deem proper.

Commissioner Garfield said today that nothing would be left undone by his bureau to develop the facts regarding the operations of the oil trust in Kansas, as well as in other states. It is not the purpose of Commissioner Garfield to confine the inquiry to Kansas. It is the intention of the commissioner to make the investigation as exhaustive as the resolution of Representative Campbell contemplates, the purpose being to develop all the facts regarding the operations of the oil trust.

Has a Basis for Inquiry.

"During the past year," said Commissioner Garfield, "a great amount of general information relating to the oil trust has been obtained. This affords a basis from which to undertake immediate inquiries into the conditions existing in specific fields, such as Kansas, Texas and California. The method of procedure will be similar to that followed in the inquiry into the operations of the alleged beef trust. The commissioner of corporations, personally, and through special agents, will obtain information from original sources. Already these sources of information have been sounded. They have responded to the commissioner of corporations by agreeing to furnish information, to afford the fullest opportunity for inspection and examination of records and to answer all questions pertinent to the matters involved in the inquiry."

It is the intention of Commissioner Garfield, under direction of President Roosevelt, to make the inquiry into the operations of the oil trust as comprehensive and exhaustive as possible. Nothing will be left undone that will develop a single fact relating to the work of the trust and if it has been unjust in discrimination against the producers of oil in Kansas or in any other state, the inquiry will show it.

Trust Courts Investigation.

It is pointed out that the oil trust, through its pipe lines, is not a common carrier, under the law, and it cannot be compelled to carry oil from any given field unless the producers accede to its terms. The oil trust maintains that it has conducted its business not only in accordance with the law, but in perfect regard to recognized business principles and that, therefore, it is perfectly willing to have the government make as rigid an inquiry as it may desire into its methods of doing business.

It is the purpose of Commissioner Garfield to make the investigation as thorough as possible. He, personally, will go to Kansas and perhaps to other oil fields in the conduct of the inquiry, which, as heretofore indicated, is not to be confined to a specific field. Every ramification of the inquiry will be followed, whether it lead across state lines or not. It may lead from Kansas to Texas, from Texas to California and from California to Pennsylvania; but wherever it may lead, it will be followed in an earnest endeavor to ascertain all the facts regarding the operation of the alleged oil trust.

At the Methodist Episcopal church this afternoon the auditorium was filled when Col. Bryan talked to men only on religious subjects. His address was impromptu. While here he was a guest of H. H. Culp, president of the school board.

RIVER RESOLUTION IS DECLARED NOT VALID

Effort to Get Survey of the Delaware May Not Be Effective.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, March 5.—It is claimed by the house committee on rivers and harbors that the resolution passed by the senate at the request of Senator Penrose, calling upon the secretary of war to report to the senate the cost of deepening the channel of the Delaware river at Philadelphia to 35 feet, will not be effective. Provision for a survey of this project was inserted in the rivers and harbors bill by the senate, but was stricken out in conference. It was then that Senator Penrose had the resolution passed which, it was understood, would accomplish the same purpose sought by the survey.

A member of the rivers and harbors committee said today that the law specifies that no survey can be made except by joint action of congress, and it is said that the war department auditor will not authorize the payment of the expense of a survey under this resolution. He says that the resolution is an attempt at circumvention of the law.

Senator Quay, during the Fifty-fifth congress, had such a resolution passed for a survey of the Pittsburgh harbor, and under this resolution the secretary of war made a report and at the following session an appropriation for improving the harbor was secured in the sundry civil bill.

GAVE PARTING CHEERS FOR AMERICUS CLUB

Pittsburgh Organization Pleased With Reception at the Inaugural.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The Americus club of Pittsburgh left this evening for home over the Pennsylvania railroad, tired out but happy and well satisfied with the reception they received in the inaugural parade. As they lined up at the Raleigh hotel preparatory to marching to the station, the streets were crowded to see them off and they were cheered all along their march down Pennsylvania avenue.

The Crucible quartet of Pittsburgh, known during the campaign last fall as the A. J. Barchfeld quartet, also left for home tonight. During the afternoon they gave an impromptu concert in the Hotel Willard ballroom, at which a select audience was present, including Dr. Barchfeld and his wife and daughter and a few invited guests. Later in the evening, at the invitation of the hotel management, the quartet sang from the mezzanine balcony during the dinner hour and made a great hit.

Dr. Barchfeld and his family, who have been guests at the Willard during the inauguration, will leave for Pittsburgh tomorrow.

DESERTED FROM THE NAVY AND WANTS TO GO BACK

John Bellmire, who says his home is at Berryville, Va., was locked up in Central station yesterday on his own admission that he was a deserter from the United States marine service. He said he enlisted in this city in March, 1903, and deserted a month later while at the League island navy yard in Philadelphia. He wants to return to the service and thought the easiest way to do so was to give himself up.

Grand Opera Stars Prefer the Weber Piano

The Weber Piano is very much preferred by grand opera stars because of its beautiful, sympathetic tone. It has what is known as the "singing voice," combining a richness and mellowness of tone which makes it the ideal instrument for refined homes. The Weber is a world standard because of its resonant, carrying tone, its durability and the solidity and honesty of its workmanship.

Long and favorable record before the public commends it to your consideration.

TO BURY WRECK VICTIMS TODAY

Public Ceremony Over Remains Abandoned in Deference to Relatives' Wishes.

FEW INJURED REMAIN HERE

Those men who lost their lives in the disaster which overtook the train carrying the Engineers' battalion, Ohio National Guard, at Clifton station, near Emsworth, Friday evening, when the special carrying the Tippecanoe club of Cleveland crashed into the engineers' train, will be buried today in Cleveland. While the surviving members of the battalion wished to give their dead officers and comrades a military funeral from the battalion armory, their plan has been abandoned in deference to the wishes of the families of the men killed.

The funerals of the victims of the wreck will be held separately and quietly. Corporal James Kehoe will be buried from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, where a requiem mass will be offered over his remains at 9 a. m. Lieut. Lee S. Schofield, Captain-Surgeon William Hendry and Private Held, will be buried during the afternoon from their late homes. The remains of Wallace A. Pinney will be deposited in a vault till his father, Lieut. O. C. Pinney, recovers sufficiently from his injuries to return to Cleveland. Mrs. Pinney, the boy's stepmother, has not yet been told of the wreck or of the death of the boy and injury of her husband. Two weeks ago she became a mother and it is feared serious consequences may follow if she is told of the accident.

Injured Men Are Recovering.

All the men injured in the wreck and who are in local hospitals, were yesterday reported to be improving rapidly and it is thought that many of them will be able to return home in a short time. Frank

LIEUT. O. C. PINNEY,
Who Was Badly Hurt and His Son Killed.

Gripp, J. E. Weill, Orell B. Stimpson, Charles Garman, George Fanner and P. C. Davis were discharged from the Allegheny General hospital yesterday and have gone back to Cleveland. Only four men remain at the hospital and all are doing well.

Only four of the victims who were taken to the Beaver County General hospital at Rochester, now remain. Lieut. F. W. Briggs and D. Percy Bowden left for Cleveland yesterday morning, accompanied by Dr. A. B. Bowden. Lieut. Walter S. McAaron, who is suffering from scalp wounds and an injured ankle, was taken to Cleveland last evening in the care of his sister, Miss Alice McAaron, and a trained nurse. Miss A. B. Abbott. Lieut. Julius A. Steube will leave the hospital today.

The father and wife of Capt. C. F. Geckler arrived yesterday. Mrs. Geckler will remain with her husband until later in the week, when it is believed he can be removed to his home in Cleveland. Capt. Geckler's leg is broken in two places and he is suffering from painful burns about the face.

Colored Cook Getting Well.

James Gray, the colored cook, who at first was not expected to live, is making a rapid recovery and is able to sit up.

The most seriously injured at the hospital is Lieut. Clifford B. Haskins of the naval reserves. Besides a dislocated shoulder, he is suffering from concussion of the brain and continues in a delirious state. When rational he complains of intense pains in the back and internal injuries are feared. His father and his law partner arrived at the hospital yesterday.

Among the relatives and friends from Cleveland and other places who visited the hospital yesterday was Lieut.-Col. Charles C. Weybrecht of the Eighth infantry Ohio National Guard. He came from Alliance, O., and is an aid-de-camp on the staff of Gov. Herrick.

W. C. Craig, 51 Water street, notified Deputy Coroner John Black last night that he found a foot near the scene of the railroad wreck at Emsworth yesterday afternoon. The railroad officers were notified to investigate the report and if the foot was found to send it to the morgue.

The Death Roll.

Mrs. Mary A. Cutler.

Mrs. Mary A. Cutler, aged 75, mother of Deputy Sheriff Charles C. Cutler, of 705 East street, Allegheny, died yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock of heart disease. At the time of her death her son was returning from the inauguration at Washington. He left her in good health on Friday evening. Mrs. Cutler died an hour and a half after being taken ill. She was the widow of Thomas Cutler, who conducted a merchant tailoring establishment in Market street, Pittsburgh, for many years and who died about two years ago. Mrs. Cutler was born in Westmoreland county on April 27, 1829. Her maiden name was Blair. She was married 56 years ago and six years ago she and her husband celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. She was a member of the Sandusky Street Baptist church, Allegheny, for 50 years. She is survived by eight children, as follows: Mrs. Hetty Burtt, Windber, Pa.; H. W., Charles C. and Miss Mamie Cutler, Allegheny; A. B., Greentree borough; T. J., Windber; Stuart, Omaha, Neb., and N. D. Cutler, Punxsutawney, Pa.

William Dunshee.

William Dunshee, a former coal operator and one of the wealthiest residents of McKeesport, died at 9 o'clock last evening at the family residence in Ringgold street, aged 65. Death was due to pneumonia. Mr. Dunshee was a large property owner. He was born in Pittsburgh and went to McKeesport in 1857. During the Civil war Mr. Dunshee operated two large steamboats on the Mississippi river and was active in the government service. Before and after that period he owned tugboats and was captain of one of them. He retired from active work 25 years ago. He is survived by the following children: Miss Margaret, J. F. and Marshall P. Dunshee, McKeesport; Mrs. W. C. Conyers, Miss Edith Dunshee and Mrs. Stanley Gardner, New York; William Dunshee, Jr., Belmont, Westmoreland county.

Edwin F. Earl.

Edwin F. Earl, aged 62, died yesterday at his residence, 5031 Castleman street. He was born in Somerset county and came to Pittsburgh about 30 years ago, becoming a member of the wholesale grocery firm of Johnson, Eagye & Earl. After the death of Mr. Eagye the firm became the Johnson-Earl-Meyers Company, of which Mr. Earl was president when he died. For many years he was president of the holesale Grocers' association. He was a member of the Duquesne club and was connected with Calvary Methodist Episcopal church, Allegheny, as he lived on that side of the river until about a year ago, when he moved to the East End. Mr. Earl is survived by one daughter, Helen, and his widow, who was also Ella Kingsley, daughter of Bishop Kingsley of the Methodist Episcopal church, who died in Bayreut, Syria.

The Rev. William Taylor Braden.

The Rev. William Taylor Braden, aged 53, is dead at the residence of his brother-in-law, George W. Berlin, Penn and Brushton avenues. He was born in Latrobe and was graduated from Allegheny college just before being admitted to the Pittsburgh conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. He had filled charges at New Alexandria, New Kensington, Friendship Park, Carnegie and Meyersdale. During his ministry at the latter place he was attacked by paralysis, the disease terminating his life. He is survived by his widow, two brothers and a sister. The funeral will take place from the Friendship Park Methodist church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Mary Ann Bryan.

FLAGMAN DECLARES HE DID HIS DUTY

Craven Denies He Admitted He Was Responsible for Wreck at Clifton.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CLEVELAND, O., March 5.—Flagman Craven of the first section of the train wrecked at Clifton, near Allegheny, Pa., Friday night, denied tonight that he had made the admission immediately after the wreck that he was responsible for the disaster. Craven said:

"As far as I am concerned, I did my duty. There is absolutely no truth in the reported statement that I said that I was responsible for the collision. I did not disappear after the wreck as reported. I remained at the scene of the wreck and assisted in the work of rescue. I was on the train which took the injured to Allegheny and after that I went to Pittsburgh and reported at the superintendent's office and then came to Cleveland yesterday morning.

"I will make a statement to the officials of the road when the time comes and not before. I expect to go to Pittsburgh Monday, to appear before the coroner."

VASSAR RATE RAISED.

After This College Year It Will Cost $100 More for the Regular Course.

NEW YORK, March 5.—(Special.)—It will cost a girl after this college year $100 more than the current rate to take the regular four-year course in Vassar college. For two score years this institution has maintained its original rates. In 1861 the Vassar college was incorporated. At that time the charge of $100 for tuition and $300 for room and board was deemed high.

For several years the money received from each student in no way could be made to pay the expenses entailed by the requirements of complex modern education or the standard of refined living to which the girls are accustomed in their homes.

Man Robbed in Pittsburgh.

SHARON, March 5.—(Special.)—Adam Hart of Jamestown started last week for Washington to see the inauguration of President Roosevelt, but he was relieved of his money. He left Jamestown with $100, and at Pittsburgh met several "friends" who took him out to see the city. They left him at the Union station, and when he put his hand into his pocket for money to purchase a ticket he found his roll was gone. He had enough to get back to Sharon and returned to Jamestown last night.

brass beds

After investigating the merits of all lines presented we have settled upon one make of Brass Beds for one good and sufficient reason—they are the best.

Not only best to look at now when new, but the sort that will still give you satisfaction in the years to come.

People are so apt to buy things that are simply sightly, we felt that it was "up to us," having your confidence, to protect you against mere veneer.

These are solidly built Brass Beds of tried and tested materials—styles the newest.

Prices $25.00, $32.50, $35.00, $42.00, $45.00, $47.50 to $62.50.

In order to counteract the influence of less reliable makes we felt obliged to price these Brass Beds on a competitive basis with the inferior, which makes them, of course, a very great deal less than other Beds with anything like as much merit.

Take the $45.00 Bed as a test—examine it through and through—shop about and see how absolutely correct this statement is.

White Enameled and Brass Trimmed Beds made for us by the same factory, $5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00, $10.00, $11.50, $12.00, $14.00 and $15.00.

ACTIVE CAMPAIGN FOR INDEPENDENTS

Homestead to Open Season Playing at McKeesport April 28, Next Day at Home.

ALL OVER THE CIRCUIT NEWS

The independent baseball season for this section will be opened at McKeesport Friday, April 28, the champion Homestead L. A. C. playing there. The next day both teams will go to Homestead to inaugurate the season in the Steel Town and then the race is begun.

Independent baseball in Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio this year promises to attain a high degree of popularity. Many of the leading towns will be in the field, and not in several years has the prospect been brighter for a successful season.

Homestead, which has won the championship for the past several years, will again be a winner, says Manager Risher. McKeesport, which came back to life last year, will be under the captaincy of Herman Soffel, and with liberal backing his team should be in the swim all season.

Braddock, which is one of the best independent towns in this section, will have a revival of the sport, it is hoped. Don McKim, the former well-known Westminster pitcher, will manage and play second base or pitch. McKim means to have a winning team. The Turtle Creek Athletics will, as usual, play Saturday afternoon games.

The Interscholastics will start their season, but will later become the Pittsburgh Collegians, and will play the strongest teams in the east and west. Lew Wentz and Jimmy Gardner say they will be in the field with a P. A. C. team. Burgess Ed. Hickey will swing into line with his Millvale troup, despite the fact that he was not very prominent last year. Hickey is a resourceful manager and "makes them all go."

Ohio Teams Are Fast.

No official announcements have been made as to whether Waynesburg and Washington will have teams, but it is very probable they will. Punxsutawney is organizing a team and it would not be surprising to see other clubs in that section following suit. Bridgeville, it is said, will employ local talent, which means that the hardest teams may be dropped.

Beaver Falls, it is reported, will probably have a first-class team to vie with Rochester for the championship of the Beaver Valley. Sharon should have one of the leading clubs, as it will have backing in the Carnegie Steel Company.

Youngstown is signing players from last year's winning team, and will present a formidable array, and it must be strong to hold up with Akron, which is getting strong players. Canton will come back to life, having a strong team. Sunday games will be played at Canton, which will help out the exchequer. Erie will also be in the field and will play Sunday ball.

The local managers are slow in announcing their players, and they will not do so until near the opening time. The Ohio clubs that have announced their linup follow:

Players Who Have Signed.

Ketcham Quits the Runners.

MEMPHIS, TENN., March 5.—(Special.)—George Ketcham, who campaigned champion Crescents at trotting tracks east and west, is through with the running branch of the horse game for good, and is making an attempt to trade his entire racing establishment to George Speer, in exchange for a country place. Three maidens and other non-winning thoroughbreds that were campaigned at Chicago tracks last summer by Ketcham, are offered to Speer for Sphynx S., a well-known pacer that Speer and Ketcham have driven on the New York speedway.

CHAMPION KISKI SCHOOL FIVE.

The Kiski team has beaten all its school opponents and has demonstrated its claim to the championship for that class. Saturday night it beat the Indiana professionals, 21 to 18, in the first game of a series of three. The team's record thus far is: Kiski 23, Apollo 12; Kiski 63, Johnstown 6; Kiski 24, Westminster 13; Kiski 19, Grove City 20; Kiski 12, Grove City 30; Kiski 20, Geneva 19; Kiski 57, Indiana Amateurs 6; Kiski 24, Indiana A. C. 20; Kiski 33, Butler 18.

WILKINSBURG HIGH SCHOOL NAMES BASEBALL DATES

Walter Orbin to Aid in Coaching of Pennsylvania Candidates the Coming Spring.

FROM THE OTHER COLLEGES

Manager Gordon McMurray of the Wilkinsburg High school baseball team has about completed his schedule. The home games will probably be played on the Braddock avenue grounds. The schedule:

April 14—Pittsburgh High school, away.
April 18—Duquesne High school, at home.
April 25—East Liberty academy, away.
May 5—Allegheny Prep., away.
May 12—Swickley High school, away.
May 13—Washington High school, away.
May 19—South Side High school, at home.
May 24—Washington High school, at home.

PROBABLE DATES.

April 22—Mt. Pleasant High school, away.
April 28—Pittsburgh college II., at home.
May 2—Braddock High school, at home.
May 9—Tarentum High school, at home.
May 16—Braddock High school, away.
May 20—W. and J. academy, away.

Walter Orbin, a former U. of P. baseball captain, will help in the coaching at Penn next month. Orbin will probably play third for McKeesport this year.

Athletics at Lehigh university had a very successful financial year. The report shows receipts to date from all branches of athletics of $19,000 61 and a cash balance of $5,728 36.

Minnesota will not have a baseball team this year. Manager Reed has been unable to secure dates with the leading western university teams because of the late decision to put a team in the field.

The men who are left in the Michigan baseball squad are:

Pitchers—Wendell, Sanger, Nagle, Eyke, Martin, Finnerty, Schulte, Sibley, Ovitz, Hyland, Williams, Hoyt, Whipple, Grace, Barnes, Kelly.

Catchers—Bird, Graham, Reed.

Infielders and Outfielders—De Free, Campbell, Bohn, O'Brien, Allebaugh, Bertsch, Desson, Keelan, Crowl, Carrothers, Gifford, Loucks, Long, Lindsey, Magoffin, Moody, Palmer, Reinger, Thorward, Taft, Taylor, Wheeler, Worthington, Welch, Zimmerman.

The athletic relations between Cornell and Pennsylvania continue to worry many at Cornell. The latest chance for a breach is the crew race just arranged between Harvard and Cornell, to take place on the Charles river at Cambridge on May 27. At about the same date the American Henley on the Schuylkill river at Philadelphia is scheduld.

The latter regatta is more or less directly under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania. The Quakers are trying hard to bring together the second varsity crews of all the rowing universities in the east—Harvard, Yale, Cornell, Columbia, Syracuse, Georgetown and Pennsylvania. The Quaker authorities extended to Cornell a most urgent invitation to enter this race. It still lies upon the table of the athletic council enacted upon. The arrangement of the Harvard race, however, undoubtedly means that Cornell will not accept Pennsylvania's invitation.

Myron E. Witham, the baseball coach of the Mercersburg academy, recently called out the candidates for the baseball team. About 30 boys responded for practice in the cage. If an early judgment may be formed, the team will be strong in pitchers and outfielders. The material for infielders is very ordinary, with possibly the exception of one man, and the candidates for the position of catcher do not show any striking ability. Mercersburg each year runs four baseball teams, each having its own schedule and coach.

Plans for spring practice of the Yale football eleven are being laid by Capt. Shevlin. His announcement of his coaches for the coming fall is not looked for till after the school year closes in June, but some of his staff will assist him in the work of developing the back field material this spring. The kickers will be called out in April, and will work about three weeks. Capt. Shevlin has been south for three weeks, just returning. He will join the Yale track team at once, and will keep up his practice for the hammer throw in connection with his training of the football players.

Practically all the athletic activity of Harvard is now turned to two sports—baseball and rowing. A varsity squad of about twenty men is now rowing daily in the Newell boat house, under the direction of Capt. Filley and Wray, the new professional coach. The four class crew squads are working in the same place on alternate days, the juniors and seniors under the direction of Rice, the professional coach, at the Weld boat house, and the freshmen and sophomores under Vail, the coach of the Newell.

The Manchester and Beaver college fives will meet tonight on the former's floor, Raleigh hall, Locust and Market streets. This will be the first time these teams have tried conclusions. The Manchester Juniors will play the Olympia team in a preliminary.

STRONG AND FAST IS HIGH SCHOOL SEVEN

East Liberty academy will figure in two more Interscholastic Hockey league championship games before the season closes. This coming Saturday it will play Shadyside academy, and March 8 it will meet the Allegheny seven. March 25 the season will come to an end in the league, Shadyside meeting Pittsburgh High school. High school has won the championship.

Shadyside, if it wins the next two games, cannot even tie Pittsburgh. This is the first hockey championship Pittsburgh has won in the past few years. Phil Lewis, Ralph Ellis, Lawrence Bright and Hugh Ferguson were on the last High school team that won a hockey championship, beating Shadyside. The present High school team is a fast one, although light, and it has good combination plays, which have won it victories. Shadyside has shown flashes of its old-time form, and then it has experienced considerable hard luck, but High school for speed and team work beat its field. Van Gordier continues the lead in goal shooting. The records follow:

	First Half	Second Half	Extra Half
Van Gordier, Pittsburgh	4	5	0
R. Robinson, Pittsburgh	3	4	0
Reisfar, Pittsburgh	3	4	0
Bunton, Wilkinsburg	2	4	0
Bright, Pittsburgh	4	0	0
Rabst, Shadyside	0	3	0
Carter, East Liberty	1	2	0
Flieger, Wilkinsburg	2	1	0
Herron, Shadyside	0	2	0
Askin, East Liberty	1	1	0
Patterson, Shadyside	2	0	0
E. Robinson, Wilkinsburg	0	2	0
Harmer, Pittsburgh	1	1	0

THIRTY WRESTLERS COMING.

Champions of Europe to Meet All-Comers in This Country.

BERLIN, March 5.—William Caspar and Rudolph Aronson have signed contracts to take 30 champion wrestlers to America. The latter have been engaged in international matches at the Busch Circus here, and include Jess Perderson of Denmark; Omer Deboulllon of Belgium; Aimable Delacalmette of France; Nicolai Petroff of Bulgaria; Jacob Koch of Germany; Zyszko Cryganlevtet of Poland; George Belling of England; Sall Sultman of Turkestan, and George Burghardt of Austria.

Caspar and Aronson arranged for a four weeks' season at the Paris Hippodrome, where the European wrestling championship will be contested, and then in New York later the wrestlers will compete for the world's championship, open to all comers.

Lawrenceville Five Defeated.

LAWRENCEVILLE, N. J., March 5.—(Special.)—The Philadelphia Central High school five beat Lawrenceville school last night, 25 to 9. The lineup:

Schnaufer, Graham, Forward	O'Gorman
Kiefaber, Center	Hughes

Phony Ballots at Dog Show.

WASHINGTON, PA., March 5.—(Special.)—Owners of handsome dogs are up in arms as a result of an alleged attempt made to deceive the judges of the recent dog show here in awarding a prize. A local manufacturing concern offered a $50 silver cup for the most handsome dog of any breed in Washington or Canonsburg. A ballot was given to each person who paid an admission fee, the awarding to be made by popular vote. It is claimed that when the judges opened the ballot box last night they detected illegal ballots. The count was deferred until an investigation could be completed.

Officers Are Chosen.

The McKees Rocks Sportsmen association has been organized by electing the following officers: President, William Zimkham; vice president, U. M. Beck; secretary, Ray Zinkham; treasurer, Dr. George F. Bubb; directors, Dr. Williams, M. N. Adams, Dr. Campbell, James Clark, J. N. Ellis and George Stormfels. The association expects to have fully 100 charter members, and will affiliate with other sportsmen's clubs in the county if possible.

TRI-STATE CONSIDERS NATIONAL PROTECTION

Managers Will Meet Friday Night at Harrisburg—Latest About the Players.

An important meeting of the Tristate league magnates is scheduled for Harrisburg Friday evening, March 10, when some of the most important legislation that has come before the league since its organization will be acted upon.

The most important business that is of interest to the public will be the adoption and announcement of a schedule for the season. The question of accepting national protection by entering the National Association of Baseball Clubs will also be on the calendar for discussion and the league will decide finally what it wishes to do about the matter for the season of 1905. It is not at all likely that protection according to the terms of the National body will be accepted as these have gone forth a well developed protest from nearly every city in the league against it and the representatives, say the fans, would be foolish to act against the desires of their patrons.

Each club has been compelled to post its $500 forfeit money to abide by the rules of the league and to finish the season at next week's meeting, and a number of trades are talked of among the several clubs with surplus players on their reserve list.

"Silver" Braun, the former local pitcher, will be with St. Joe this year. Eddie Zimmer of Erie, Frank Schibeck, Tom Flenjiter other players well known in this section, are with St. Joe.

Wheeling has sold Eugene Curtis to Colorado Springs.

Phil Lewis will join the Brooklyn team next week.

Chic Cargo says he has not signed for this season. He is free to sign with any club, and the one that offers the most money will get him. Albany wants him back, and the Plattsburgh (N. Y.) independent team offers him good inducements.

Birmingham of the Southern league will make a fight for Pitcher Frank Deason of Beaver college, who is under contract to the Louisville club. Birmingham claims Deason signed with that team before accepting the Louisville terms.

Frank Haller wants an outfielder for his Boon (Ia.) club. His duties signing Peter Brown.

FINDS SUCCESSOR TO ROSE.

Dunlap Tosses Shot Over 45 Feet in Michigan Indoor Meet.

ANN ARBOR, MICH., March 5.—(Special.)—The varsity indoor record last night was of a sensational order, and it brought encouragement that Michigan will be counted on as a strong factor again in the western championship. Walter Plimlaigh broke Overdrak's old indoor record of 10 feet 10 inches in the pole vault by sailing over the bar at 11 feet. One, a sophomore engineer, surprised everybody by doing a mile in 4:23, which beats all Michigan records.

The big sensation was in the shot-put. Dunlap, a senior engineer, who has been "coming" along for three years, tossed the weight 45 feet 2 inches, which is better than even giant Rose did last year at this time. Gorrais did 43 feet 6 inches and Ackerman did 41 feet 5 inches.

Kesler ran the 40-yard race in the record time of :04 3-5. Goodwin negotiated the quarter mile in :53 4-5. In the 880-yard run Watt made the distance, a new one for him, in 2:04 4-5.

AMONG THE PASSERS.

The Tenth U. P. H. will meet Watson Midgets tomorrow night on Watson floor.

The players of the Oakmont Midgets are to report at Foster today, not later than 2:30 o'clock.

The Dolger club journeyed to Knoxville and played the team of that place, going down to defeat 20 to 14.

The L. B. Cooks would like to hear from all 8 or 9-year-old teams having balls. Address Sam Price, 106 Washington street.

The Rambler Juniors would like to hear from all 9 and 10-year-old teams. Address S. Pauley, Pingst street, Duquesne Heights, city.

The Arsenal A. A. defeated Arsenals 27 to 14. By winning this game Arsenal claims the 12-year-old championship, winning 12 out of 12 games played.

The Point Stars defeated the Duquesne Juniors and would like to hear from all 7 and 8-year-old teams. Address Walter Malory, 210 Penn avenue.

The Sycamore Reserves will meet the Allegheny High school sophomore team at the Phipps gymnasium, corner School and Reboco streets, Allegheny, tomorrow afternoon. The game will be called at 3:30 o'clock.

WASH.-JEFF. TO MEET PITTSBURGH COLLEGE

Bluffites Would Play Two Baseball Games at Washington Decoration Day.

Washington and Jefferson and Pittsburgh College may resume athletic relations this spring by the baseball route. The Washington collegians recently called off two games with Waynesburg because of tactics that Manager Davis did not approve of. The games were scheduled for Decoration day. Pittsburgh college has these dates open, and accordingly last week wrote Manager Davis, asking for the games. If they are given, all then will be serene again between them.

These institutions have not been on friendly terms for the past two years. The trouble was over baseball games, but as neither seems to desire war any longer it is probable they will come to an agreement.

Pittsburgh college will probably start indoor baseball practice this week. Capt. Hays may issue a call for candidates any day. The indication is that the Bluffites will have another strong team. Most of last year's players are in college, and it is likely Pitcher Ike Collins will return for the spring term. Gastmeyer of Hartford, Conn., who is said to be a strong shortstop, is in college. Charlie Duffy, the first baseman, thinks he will do better this year than in previous seasons. He will play with the Pittsburgh collegians at the close of the season on the Bluff.

FOR BRITT AND NELSON.

Savannah Club Ready to Give Purse for Crack Lightweights.

SAVANNAH, GA., March 5.—(Special.)—There is a movement under way by a number of sports to hold the proposed mill between Jimmy Britt and Battling Nelson in this city next month. The Savannah A. C. is ready to give a liberal purse to the boxers and has tendered the representatives of the two pugilists to this effect.

LAJOIE GREATEST BATTER IN BASEBALL WORLD

CLEVELAND, March 5.—Napoleon Lajoie has the greatest record of all batsmen that have been in baseball with the possible exception of Anson. Lajoie is a worthy successor of Anson, and he appears to be the man that will dethrone the Chicagoan if he remains in baseball long enough. For nine years he has averaged .362. His batting record for nine years follows:

Years	G.	A.B.	R.	H.	S.H.	S.B.	Av.
1896	99	374	57	97	9	6	.326
1897	126	545	107	196	5	22	.360
1898	147	610	115	209	5	21	.328
1899	72	305	70	117	3	14	.379
1900	102	421	90	156	2	20	.340
1901	131	543	145	220	1	27	.422
1902	87	353	81	129	5	29	.378
1903	126	493	99	172	11	22	.362
1904	140	554	92	211	10	21	.381
Totals	970	4,035	840	1,461	47	209	.362

His record shows that he has been at bat 4,035 times and has made 1,461 baseknits. The only man who passed Lajoie's record was Anson, who had a grand average of .336 for fifteen years' service in major leagues.

Telescope Is Fast Runner.

NEW ORLEANS, March 5.—(Special.)—With the almost sultry weather of the past week it was demonstrated that the new City Park track is destined to become one of the fastest in the south. If not in the country. Telescope reeled off furlongs Saturday in :59 1-5, which is surely the speediest five-eighths run in the south. The sprinting horse had been conceded to be between Florentine, owned by Capt. Sam S. Brown of Pittsburgh, Frontenac and Telescope, but after the latter's five-length victory over Florentine Monday golding would walk away from both of them.

W. U. P. Team Is Scheduled.

WASHINGTON, PA., March 5.—(Special.)—From now until the opening of the season baseball activity at Washington and Jefferson college will be marked, this being the only sport on the boards. All the players are in good shape. Manager Davis has filled one of the open dates on the schedule by scheduling the team of the W. U. P. Mellvale. This is the first step toward removal of athletics between the two schools, and football men are confident that a gridiron game will be scheduled.

Woodlake's New Officers.

At the recent meeting the following officers were elected by the Woodlake Athletic club: E. A. Diemer, manager; J. Heisy, treasurer, and William F. Thompson, secretary. The captain will not be elected until after the opening game, which will probably be April 29. For dates address E. A. Diemer, box 75, Station A, Pittsburgh.

Interest in Intercity Match.

The intercity bowling tourney between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, which the Business Men's club will hold on next Monday night at Old City hall promises to be the biggest thing of the kind ever attempted here. The boxers who are coming are the pick of the best in the Quaker City, and are being put in shape by Jack O'Brien.

Phenicle to Meet Dougherty.

There will be a six-round boxing contest tonight at Windber, Pa. The main bout will bring together Jack Phenicle and Denny Dougherty of Youngstown. Another bout will have Kid Carroll, who appeared at the Duquesne Men's club Saturday night, and a bout from Windber. Jimmy Mason will go up to Windber today at noon with the fighters.

Braddock Girls Want Games.

The C. A. C. Ladies Basketball team of Braddock would like to arrange games for March and April with any college or ladies teams of Western Pennsylvania, to be played at home or away from home. Address Manager, C. A. C. Ladies Basketball Team, Braddock.

Eight Teams for Indiana League.

RICHMOND, IND., March 5.—(Special.)—The new baseball league of Indiana will probably be composed of the following eight teams: Peru, Logansport, Kokomo, Tipton, Noblesville, Marion, Elwood and Huntington. It is expected to start the season about May 10.

Broderick Resigns Early.

CUMBERLAND, MD., March 5.—(Special.)—William F. Broderick has resigned as manager of the Midland baseball team of the Cumberland-Georges Creek baseball league, and is succeeded by Thomas Kenny.

World's Record Is Broken.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 5.—The world's half mile trotting record on the ice was broken yesterday by Lou Almont. The time was 1:03½, the best previous time being 1:04¾.

Get Their Hearing Today.

Superintendent of Police Taylor of Philadelphia yesterday notified the local detectives that Leon Visco and Amalia Lungo, who eloped from that city last Monday, would be arraigned for a hearing today. Detective Sheffert went there to appear against them and bring them here for trial. It is alleged Lena Visco took $1,500 from her husband, who is a fruit dealer in Station street.

Rivet Manufacturers to Meet.

The National Association of Rivet Manufacturers will hold their annual meeting at the Hotel Lincoln tomorrow afternoon. D. J. Champion, president of the Champion Rivet Company, of Cleveland, was here to arrange for the meeting. It is expected that about 40 members of the association will attend the meeting.

Horse Needed Exercise.

A horse owned and driven by Leo McCarthy of Thirty-eighth street ran away on Butler street last night. Mr. McCarthy and George Munson of Forty-fifth street were thrown out and Munson had his left arm broken. The horse had not been out of the stable for some time and was unmanageable.

Alleged Gambling House Raided.

Lieut. Robert Dickson of Allegheny, assisted by a squad of officers, raided an alleged gambling house and speakeasy run by Jack Reagan at 51 Darrah street at 10:30 last night. Reagan and 17 visitors were taken in patrol wagons to central station. A lot of beer, whisky, cards, chips and [illegible] tables were confiscated.

FIRST PROFESSIONAL JOB.

OTTO KNABE.

He played outfield on the Reitzhoover, a local amateur team, and he was re-signed to cover first base on the Colorado Springs team of the Western league.

INTERCOLLEGIATE A. A. WILL FORM BASKETBALL LEAGUE

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—With the close of the Intercollegiate Basketball league season next Friday in New York the present chaotic condition of affairs in the college basketball world will come to an end, for by next season the indoor sport will be thoroughly organized as a college game by the Intercollegiate authorities. On March 15 there will be a meeting of the Intercollegiate Basketball league, and it will be held, and at this meeting action will be taken by which all of the colleges may play under uniform rules and conditions, and by which the game may be strengthened to the college world. The game has made wonderful strides in popularity among the colleges throughout the country during the past two years, and at the present movement toward uniformity in rules, etc., is a step in the right direction.

Basketball as played by the big colleges today is a pretty game. It is played on a court of about 2,500 square feet, with boundary lines on all four sides, and not in a small cage as it is played generally here in this city and vicinity. The rules under which the game is played differ radically in different sections of the country and a team, south, for instance, on the University of Pennsylvania five, encounters many strange experiences in respect to playing rules and conditions in a match. At Swarthmore, Pa., Penn's five won and lost a game, and at Washington Continentals, the team in that place, on a court where there were no backboards behind the baskets. In Worcester, Mass., where the Holy Cross team was played, the Penn boys were forced to play in a cage and with a wire screen behind the baskets. In Baltimore the Red and Blue team played Johns Hopkins on a court with a dirt floor. All of these instances show how the visiting team, under the present fundamental condition of things, is handicapped by local conditions, and these and points which the Intercollegiate association will correct before next season.

It is the intention of the Intercollegiate league authorities to call a general meeting in New York in about three weeks from now of representatives from every college in the country having a basketball team. This general meeting is to elect permanent committees for playing rules, etc., and an official rule book will be published.

This reform movement originated at Yale, the first of the colleges to take up the sport of basketball, and is being pushed by ex-Capt. Bob Hyatt of the Blue team, of several years ago.

PENROSE PLEDGED TO GREATER CITY

Senator Required Majority of County Delegation to Agree Upon the Bill.

POLITICIANS ARE PLOTTING

"Twelve or 13 out of the 20 members of the state legislature from Allegheny county are pledged to vote for the Wilbert bill creating the Greater Pittsburgh out of the cities of Pittsburgh and Allegheny," said a prominent member of the Pittsburgh chamber of commerce yesterday. "Representative John Francies of Allegheny City will resign in a few days from the legislature and this will give 12 or 13 of the 19 votes of our county for the Greater Pittsburgh bill.

"Senator Penrose pledged us that any Greater Pittsburgh bill which would receive the support of a majority of the members of the Allegheny county representatives and senators would receive his support. We expect Senator Penrose to keep his pledge and we have no reason to think he will not."

"The overwhelming public expression in favor of Greater Pittsburgh in both Pittsburgh and Allegheny will find its way to the leaders at Harrisburg and Washington, and I don't think Senator Penrose or any other person cares to antagonize public opinion," said George H. Anderson, chairman of the Greater Pittsburgh committee, last night. Discussing the meeting held by the anti-annexationists in Allegheny Saturday night Chairman Anderson said:

"For four or five days I have known that a political coalition had been formed between certain factions in Allegheny to fight Greater Pittsburgh, and the meeting Saturday night confirms this. They did the best they could, but the movement has gained too strong a momentum in Allegheny to be stopped by the politicians and officeholders. I was very much amused at the arguments of ex-Gov. Stone against the Wilbert bill, particularly his statement that he did not know whether he was for or against annexation, but wanted time to consider it."

From information received in Allegheny by those who are watching the progress of the Wilbert bill, that measure is expected to be taken up for consideration in the state senate tomorrow, and a number of North Side politicians expect to go to Harrisburg to put blocks in its road. Among the chief opponents to annexation is Representative John M. Henderson of Allegheny, whose father, Harvey Henderson, made a bitter speech against annexation Saturday night.

Representative Henderson is said to be a candidate for the position of city solicitor of Allegheny under the next administration, providing a Republican is elected mayor. William C. Gill, the attorney who presided at the meeting Saturday night, is also anxious to become city solicitor of the North Side. Andrew Armstrong, who was one of the principal promoters of the demonstration, wishes to get back his old job of chief assessor of the city.

ARGUMENT FOR ANNEXATION.

Greater Pittsburgh Publicity Committee Is Issuing a Little Volume Filled With "Straight Goods."

"A Volley of Grapeshot for Greater Pittsburgh" is the title of a pamphlet just issued by the bureau of publicity of the committee of Greater Pittsburgh. It contains a collection of editorial utterances by the newspapers of Pittsburgh favoring the greater city, the arguments of prominent Alleghenians along the same lines and an excerpt from Gov. Pennypacker's annual message to the legislature, in which he speaks of the wisdom of legislative aid to the annexation plan. The encouragement lent to the Greater Pittsburgh movement by the poets of the local papers is found in quotations from current press contributions.

It is the purpose of the committee to give wide circulation to the pamphlet in the campaign of education now being carried on.

Amish People Hold Property in Wayne County, O.—Reports on Assays Awaited.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WOOSTER, O., March 5.—The reported discovery of gold bearing quartz in the streams about Mt. Eaton, Wayne county, has drawn many persons to the village. An assayer's report indicates that the vein will pay well for the working.

Many have tried to lease land but have met with no success, as practically all of the land in the township is owned by Amish people, whose religious teachings are against leasing land for mining purposes. A report is expected this week from a half-dozen assays, and if these confirm the one already received, active steps will be taken toward establishing a plant for crushing rock and getting the metal.

Old inhabitants declare when the country was first settled the Indians told of gold in the high lands about what is now Mt. Eaton, but never told just where the veins were. It is stated that the secret was known to an old man by the name of Grant, who had a rude map of the land, but that this map was lost.

MISTAKEN FOR HIGHWAYMAN.

Superintendent of Brick Works Shot Near Blairsville Intersection by Express Company's Employe.

GREENSBURG, March 5.—(Special.)—E. H. Stahlnecker, superintendent of the Branch brick works near Blairsville intersection, was shot and probably fatally injured late last night by Clark Neil, a young man employed in the express office there. Stahlnecker passed the express office on his way home. Neil and a companion came out of the office and followed Stahlnecker. The two had a lantern. The night being dark, the superintendent stopped until they came up to him, and then asked them to take the lead. Neil, it is said, at once drew a revolver and fired. The bullet struck Stahlnecker in the mouth. Neil claims he thought Stahlnecker was a highwayman.

Wife Has Consumption.

Charles Johnson, colored, of Fountain street, Allegheny, was arrested last night for the alleged beating of his wife, who is suffering with consumption.

VERY FEW PEOPLE

Are Free From Some Form of Indigestion.

Very few people are free from some form of indigestion, but scarcely two will have the same symptoms.

Some suffer most directly after eating, bloating from gas in the stomach and bowels, others have heartburn or sour risings, still others have palpitation of heart, headaches, sleeplessness, pains in chest and under shoulder blades, some have extreme nervousness, as in nervous dyspepsia.

But whatever the symptoms may be, the cause in all cases of indigestion is the same, that is the stomach for some reason fails to properly and promptly digest what is eaten.

This is the whole story of stomach troubles in a nutshell. The stomach must have rest and assistance and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give it both by supplying those natural digestives which every weak stomach lacks, owing to the failure of the peptic glands in the stomach to secrete sufficient acid and pepsin to thoroughly digest and assimilate the food eaten.

One grain of the active principle in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 grains of meat, eggs or other wholesome food, and this claim has been proven by actual experiment, which anyone can perform for himself in the following manner: Cut a hard boiled egg into very small pieces, as it would be if masticated; place the egg and two or three of the tablets in a bottle or jar containing warm water heated to 98 degrees (the temperature of the body) and keep it at this temperature for three and one-half hours, at the end of which time the egg will be as completely digested as it would have been in the healthy stomach of a hungry boy.

The point of this experiment is that what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do to the egg in the bottle they will do to the egg or meat in the stomach and nothing else will rest and invigorate the stomach so safely and effectually. Even a little child can take Stuart's Tablets with safety and benefit if its digestion is weak, and the thousands of cures accomplished by their regular daily use are easily explained when it is understood that they are composed of vegetable essences, aseptic, pepsin, diastase and Golden Seal, which mingle with the food and digest it thoroughly, giving the overworked stomach a chance to recuperate.

Dieting never cures Dyspepsia, neither do pills and cathartic medicines, which simply irritate and inflame the intestines.

When enough food is eaten and promptly digested there will be no constipation, nor, in fact, will there be disease of any kind, because good digestion means good health in every organ.

The merit and success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are world-wide and they are sold at the moderate price of 50 cents for full sized package in every drug store in the United States and Canada, as well as in Europe.

SEASON OF LENT AND ITS EFFICACY

RIGHTEOUSNESS ITS MISSION

"Lent and Its Efficacy," was the sermon theme of the Rev. Albert C. Dieffenbach in the pulpit of the Reformed Church of the Ascension, Termon avenue, Allegheny, yesterday morning. During his discourse the pastor held that the fundamental responsibility of the church was to establish righteousness in the minds and deeds of all men, rather than restricting itself by enforcing denominational ordinances, and said in part:

We are on the threshold of the Lenten season. I take it that this is essentially the churchman's season, wherein it will be a valuable thing for him to make a survey of the ordinances of the church in their employment as factors in faith and love and righteousness.

There is nothing ecclesiastical in what I shall say, in this sense, that the elements in worship are not in themselves the essence of the kingdom of God, or the church. In fact the conditions warrant our belief that one mistake we have made in the church is rigid adherence to some doctrine or system of worship which has not been deep-rooted or authoritative for the whole people. We have laid so much stress, gathered so much storm, on "our little systems," that they have become with us, and in the minds of many without, synonomous with religion itself.

When the man cries out in derision, "I don't care for religion; I want honesty and mercy and truth," he knows not what he cries; and yet he is not all to blame, for he sees these elements of righteousness so relegated and outworn in the expressly religious services, that he will have no part in them. Men's spirits cry out in their hungering need, and the church finds herself greatly at fault if she does not recognize the deep longings of humanity's heart, and strive to gratify them, if not by a universally accepted form of worship at least by such a system as will have as its explicit and interminable purpose the righteousness of God in the souls of his people.

I should count it a very unworthy thing if this people should so misunderstand the Master as to express disapproval and dislike of ordinances in other denominations than our own; if, in sum, they should forget the purpose of worship so far as to find no impulses to righteousness in the various churches of Protestantism, or even in a Roman Catholic cathedral or in a Jewish synagogue.

The measure of a man in Christendom is according to his ability to feel and comprehend the means that have been and still are employed in all religious systems. For they are all organically related to that which we profess as the full embodiment of God's greatest revelation, Jesus Christ. Wherever there is naught in public worship which fails to impel one to greater righteousness, there is a weakness either in ourselves or in the ordinances—more likely in the former.

Before the evidence of the most searching historical investigation men are beginning to accord to righteousness the supremacy attributed to it by Jesus. He did not offer a beatitude on the establishment and maintenance of ordinances. He said "Blessed are they which hunger and thirst after righteousness." This utterance had reference to life as we live it day by day. In fact, Jesus says very little about the church as a place of worship, because he had something greater in mind. It is better to be the church than to go to church. Comparatively little time can be spent within the walls of the sanctuary, but all of the time may be employed in the spirit of the church, which is righteousness.

The church in the sense in which we have used the term is in danger of becoming a small and selfish and narrow institution by not recognizing the fact that a company of worshipers in a place of worship is not more holy than a company of legislators, or physicians, or men of business. We need, in our churches, to involve in our praises and prayers and sermons the idea of a world inhabited by God, and by his children working co-operatively for righteousness. And these children we must know, employ the ordinances of the organized church, and some of them employ ordinances of their own making, because they have great things to do, compared with which prayer and preachings and the sacraments are important ministers, but nothing more.

CUR GAMBLING SPIRIT DENOUNCED BY PASTOR

Brings an Indictment Against the Fever of Speculation in the Name of the Ten Commandments.

The final service of the Second Presbyterian church in the Bijou theater was held last evening, the services, both morning and evening hereafter to be held in the new Second Presbyterian Church Temple on Eighth street, below Penn avenue, and noonday meetings for business people to be held in the Avenue theater, beginning next Monday. Last night, speaking from Acts xv.-26, Pastor S. Edward Young said:

Who with a finger on our community's pulse could fail to note the feverish risk spirit of our times? If we try a game in the bowling alley, in how many instances the victor plays free and the vanquished pays the price! Do the progressive social games often fail nowadays to have the added zest of a stake to be lost or won? Urchins in the alley at craps, dandies in the drawing-room at bridge or euchre, almost the whole crowd around a race course or football field or baseball diamond making all sorts of wages, Wall street and Fourth avenue plunging in stocks, our young men rushing to get rich by speculation—what a spell the risk mania has spun about the people! Are you sure the lesser hazardings are not whetting the appetite for the more terrible? Would it not be wiser to slow up all along the line rather than run the risk of growing a race of gamblers? Gambling is the arch-villain, the Judas Iscariot of the vices.

I bring indictment against gambling in the name of the First Commandment, and charge that it enthrones unlawful pleasure as its god; in the name of the Second Commandment, and charge thereto idolatry of ill-gotten gain. I bring indictment in the name of the Third Commandment, and charge that it breeds an atmosphere of profanity; in the name of the Fourth Commandment, and charge that this vice turns the Sabbath into damning revelry. I bring indictment in the name of the Fifth Commandment, and charge the allurement of sons and daughters from their parents' house to dishonor; in the name of the Sixth Commandment, and charge the fostering of suicide and murder. I bring indictment in the name of the Eighth Commandment, and affirm that theft and defalcation are always and everywhere its bitter fruit. I bring indictment in the name of the Ninth Commandment and declare that deceit and lying are the instruments it traffics with; in the name of the Tenth Commandment, and charge that the saying, "Thou shalt not covet," is mocked and the God who said it cast aside. I bring indictment in the name of conscience and the laws of all truly civilized communities. The way to punctuate gambling is not with a comma or a semicolon or an exclamation or a dash; but with a period—a full stop.

MEANING OF "SIMPLE LIFE."

Rabbi Levy Distinguishes Between the True and False Conception of Wagner's Message.

The twentieth lecture of the course being delivered by the Rev. Dr. J. Leonard Levy before the Reform Congregation Rodeph Shalom in Carnegie hall, Allegheny, yesterday, had for its theme, "Plain Living and Right Thinking." Dr. Levy said, in part:

The gospel of the "simple life" preached by our recent guest, Pastor Wagner, must not be understood as an appeal for a return to conditions which to many of us would seem barbaric. The simple life can be attained only through the culture of the heart and mind. One can be exceedingly simple in the midst of the greatest wealth, and artificial in the midst of poverty. Man needs not much on earth: a few friends, a few good books, a few moral principles, a few simple duties, a few deeds of simple kindness which make the few years of man's lives—these tell the sum of existence; and then we go—we know not where.

The simple life does not mean a return to the bucolic or rural life of the primitive shepherd. It means, in a word, the old fashioned virtues applied to the new fashioned conditions. It means the old, homely ideals realized amid the new complex surroundings. It means the old God helping, moving, inspiring the new life of our time.

GERMANY ANXIOUS FOR RECIPROCITY

Kaiser's Ambassador Has Made Preliminary Negotiations at Washington.

THE SENATE IS A HINDRANCE

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The Berlin advices indicating a purpose on the part of the German foreign office to renew its efforts to secure something in the nature of a reciprocity treaty with the United States have attracted much attention in official circles here, as it has been known for some time past that this was in contemplation. In fact, this matter has taken shape semi-officially through the presentation to Secretary Hay of resolutions adopted by the American board of trade of Berlin favoring such an arrangement.

The negotiation by the German government of a set of new trade treaties with Austria, France and Russia extending to these countries preferential tariff rates on many natural and manufactured products now imported in great quantities from America, has made it certain that our trade with Germany would be almost extinguished unless some compensating arrangement could be made. Emperor William has foreseen the growth of much ill feeling between Germany and the United States as a result and he has specially charged Baron Sternberg to do everything possible to avert this by negotiating a treaty with this government that would place the American producers on all fours with those of Europe.

The ambassador already has cautiously broached the subject here, but he is so well acquainted with the state of feeling in the United States senate toward reciprocity that he has not been able to report that the prospect is favorable for the consummation of a German-American reciprocity treaty. The present disposition of the executive is to refrain from entering on further negotiations for trade treaties until the senate has formally indicated its disposition toward the formidable array of reciprocity conventions which have for so many months awaited action by that body, and unless the special session, which begins for business purposes tomorrow, develops a change of heart on the part of senators toward these pending treaties, there will be no addition to the docket of executive business in the shape of a German-American reciprocity treaty.

HOW TO AVOID THE FATE PRESCRIBED BY DR. OSLER

Dr. Daniel Dorchester, Jr., Tells How One May Live Beyond the 60 Limit and Still Be Happy.

"Old age is just what a man makes it," declared the Rev. Dr. Daniel Dorchester, Jr., last evening in the pulpit of Christ Methodist Episcopal church, Center and Liberty avenues, during his sermon on "Life After 40 Years as Interpreted by Dr. Osler and as Realized in Human Experience."

"Life is not in the game, but in the way of playing it. Each infant born into this world is given a capital of vigor and physical power which should last three score and 10 years. We can draw from the capital or establish an income from that capital. There may be many young spendthrifts in health in hearing of me who will be destined to the poor house of old age."

Dr. Dorchester took for his text the last three chapters of Ecclesiastes, in which the beauties of the aging almond tree are depicted. The pastor likened the gray hair of old age to the whiteness which spreads over the almond tree in full bloom.

"Some think with Dr. Osler and give voice to the heathen expression 'those God loves die young.' If Osler were right life would be a great failure. If each new spring does not bring a deeper message than old age is deplorable. To make old age a blessing one must remember while young that he will be old; and when old, that he was once young.

"If we shut ourselves up within a class or a 'set' we may be happy and content for a time, but what lonesomeness when our circles become narrowed until we remain in solitude. Do not cut yourself off from human life. Hold all men as akin to you. Reverence human society and it will comfort you. Grow to your fellowmen in your youth and in your old age they will grow to you."

Dr. Dorchester closed his sermon by citing instances of renowned characters in all walks of life who achieved fame and success after reaching the age of 40.

CONGREGATION 105 YEARS OLD TO HAVE NEW CHURCH

Zion Lutherans at Whitehall Pledge $10,000 for Place of Worship. Dedication In Fall.

The congregation of the Zion Lutheran church at Whitehall, this county, voted yesterday morning to build a new church edifice of brick, for which $10,000 was pledged at the meeting. The new church is to be erected on the site of the present building. It is expected to be completed and dedicated next Thanksgiving or Christmas.

The Zion church of Whitehall is 105 years old, being the oldest Lutheran congregation in Allegheny county and probably west of the Allegheny mountains. The church has 240 communicants. The present pastor is the Rev. C. B. Sheapsley, whose active and effective labors have greatly added to its growth.

PREACHED LAST SERMON.

The Rev. A. D. Mink Concludes His Pastorate With the Emory M. E. Congregation.

With his sermon in Emory Methodist Episcopal church last night the Rev. Arthur D. Mink concluded his pastorate with that congregation. The termination of his connection with the congregation was the result of his announced intention, made last summer, when he said that his resignation as pastor would go into effect on Sunday, March 5. The Rev. Mr. Mink will go east some day this week, and it is probable that he will be assigned to a pulpit outside the Pittsburgh conference.

The Rev. Mr. Mink has been pastor of the church in this city for the past four years. While in charge of the congregation he has taken in 450 new members, helped pay off a church debt of $30,000 and has helped make some important improvements to the church building. The Emory congregation is said to have the most largely attended Wednesday evening prayer meetings of any congregation in the two cities. There were 220 present at the meeting last Wednesday evening.

The Rev. Mr. Mink's successor with the Emory Methodist Episcopal congregation will be determined at the next meeting of conference. Until a regular pastor has been called the congregation will be furnished with supplies. The regular church meetings will be held as usual each week.

WESTINGHOUSE COMPANY'S INCREASED BUSINESS NECESSITATES FURTHER BOILER EQUIPMENT

Westinghouse-Parson Steam Turbines in Course of Construction in the Shops of the Westinghouse Machine Company.

Since the first of the year the business of the Westinghouse Machine Company has exceeded anything in the history of the company. During the months of January and February the works at East Pittsburgh have received a larger number of orders than have ever been handled before in double the time. The bulk of the business has been done in the turbine department, and the orders received for turbines since the first of the year aggregate well towards 100,000 horse-power.

Among these turbine orders the company received one from the Indian Electric Company, Indian Harbor, Mass.; one from the Gray Manufacturing Company of Gastonia, N. C.; one from the Henrietta mills of Henrietta, N. C.; one from the Grace Harbor Electric Company, Grace Harbor, Wash.; one from the Rhode Island Company of Providence, R. I., and one from the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company.

This extensive demand for turbines has made it imperative for the company to add to its boiler capacity, and a battery of 5,000-horse power boilers will now be added to the East Pittsburgh plant. When this boiler is in operation the company will be in a position to test at one time turbines aggregating 12,000-horse power, and it may be better understood what this means when it is stated that testing such a number of turbines means the use a day of 20,000,000 gallons of water for cooling the condensers.

LARKIN TALKS; FAVORS FUSION

Thinks Day of Partisan Political Rule in Cities and Counties Is Gone Forever.

BIGELOW LEAVES FOR EAST

While Director E. M. Bigelow is uttering mysterious words that seem to indicate he has hope of capturing the Republican organization and is not saying a word about fusion with the Democrats for the coming county campaign, Controller Larkin has come out for fusion, thus joining hands with the county Citizens who are more in favor of fusion than of the scheme to try to secure control of the Republican party.

About the time Controller Larkin was talking fusion last night, Director Bigelow was getting ready for a trip east, to see Senator Penrose, he said. While it is possible that Bigelow is to see Penrose concerning the Allegheny annexation bill now before the state legislature, or to urge the senator to ask the governor to appoint members of the Citizens party to some of the judgeships which will be available if the bills for the new courts pass the legislature, it is also supposed he intends to consult Penrose concerning the political situation in Allegheny county, with a view to having the Citizens party recognized as Republican. Among his friends the director is said to have uttered mysterious hints which would indicate that he believes he has potent arguments to present to Penrose. Early yesterday evening Mr. Bigelow said he would leave for the east last night, and so far as could be learned, he went away according to schedule.

Mr. Larkin was asked whether he thought the political parties should each make a fight for the county offices this fall.

"I think the day of partisan rule of city and county is past," said the controller. "In my opinion the experience of the last few years has shown that a non-partisan administration in county and municipal affairs is better than the partisan government that preceded it. I am in favor of fusion in the next county campaign, and my opinion is that all the county officers placed in office by the fusion movement should be re-elected.

"The recent election in Pittsburgh has demonstrated that the people want a business administration and have definitely settled that partisan politics has nothing to do with county or municipal affairs; I think the people of the county feel the same way, and that the county officers indorsed by all the independent elements will be elected."

There are, however, others who, while recognizing that Mr. Larkin's administration of the city controller's office was approved by the people, believe that in a campaign for county offices the dissatisfaction with the rule of the Citizens party will make itself known in a large majority for the Republican candidates, provided those candidates be men who deserve the confidence of the people. The Republicans intend to nominate such candidates, it is declared. They put up a good man against Mr. Larkin and he was beaten only through Mr. Larkin's popularity. They will nominate good men for county offices and they do not admit that there is anyone among the county officers elected by the fusionists who has enough of the popular Larkin qualities about him to insure his election by a popular uprising.

A CHURCH TYPE.

Dr. W. H. W. Rees Tells of the Spiritual Strength of the Temple at Ephesus.

The Rev. Dr. W. H. W. Rees, pastor of the Smithfield Methodist Episcopal church, preached last night on "The Ephesian Church—A Type." He took for his text Revelation II:1-7 verses and said in part:

The church at Ephesus had in it characteristics that made it a typical church. It was distinguished for its labor, patience, hatred of false doctrines, and a persistence in the right course. The general trend of the church was right, but it was like a vessel headed toward the port, with the fires all out under the boilers.

The church at Ephesus was a working church. It was like a hive of busy bees, all at work, but the service was not prompted by the love. It was a mere desire to build up the church. The church had patience. God puts proper estimate upon heroism, the bravery that would win laurels for the brow, but He puts a greater premium upon the inner life of patience.

Jealousy for the truth was a striking characteristic of the Ephesian church. There is in these last days a spurious charity toward false teachers, false doctrines, and worldly life. He frowns upon Anarchists and denounces the organization that imperils the life of the president, and coddle and praise the men who publicly deny the divinity of Jesus Christ, hurl their anathemas at the orthodox faith, and put the crown of their approval upon the deeds of the Nicolaitans. And yet the orthodox faith and the Christian Bible have made this a great republic.

He cannot burn too deeply into our Christian consciousness the line which separates the "sympathy of compassion from the sympathy of complacency." After all the good that God saw and commended in the Ephesian church, He points out to them a defect that was fatal to their religious life. Their love was dying out; the fountain was drying up; their "first love" that was full of enthusiasm was being forsaken. God's message to the church today is watch your heart fires. If we are to maintain our religious life we must fight our battles on our knees. Organization is not enough, there must be spiritual vitality in the church of the living God.

PRETTY BOOKKEEPER CHARGED WITH SHORTAGE

She Became Ill and Her Substitute Couldn't Understand Her System.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, March 5.—Over the bookkeeping of Miss Regina Black, who is young and very pretty, the trading stamp firm of C. E. Barker & Co. is so perturbed that they have caused her arrest on the charge of grand larceny. They think that she has taken from $500 to $5,000 of their funds. Miss Black was ill in bed when she was arrested and she is still at her home, as her mother obtained for her a $500 bail bond to guarantee her appearance tomorrow in the Tombs police court.

There is no telling how long the firm would have been happy in the thought that they had Miss Black at the ledgers, were it not for the fact that two weeks ago she sent word that she was ill.

A man assigned to do her work declared that he did not understand that kind of calculation. The firm sent out for expert accountants, who reported that there must be a few thousand missing.

JAPANESE COLONEL KILLED.

Commander of Second Manchurian Army Is Also Wounded and Sent to Hospital.

TOKYO, March 5.—The Japanese colonel, Himada, was killed at the capture of Seikajo and Gen. Kleber, commander of the Second Manchurian army, was wounded and sent to the hospital at Mukden. The Russians have requested the military attaches to withdraw from Vladivostok. Ten thousand Russian troops are reported to be at Laoplon 25 miles south of Simintin, and Gen. Mistchenko has had a disagreement with Gen. Kuropatkin and is returning to Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 5.—Russian war correspondents express the greatest wonder at the irresistible and frenzied rushes of the Japanese infantry. Russian critics are surprised at the boldness and skill of Japanese strategy in timing the onslaught for a suitable season, when the winter has ended, but the rivers are still ice-bound.

HAGERSTOWN, MD., March 5.—(Special.)—Visiting ministers here attending the sessions of the Central Pennsylvania conference United Evangelical church, this morning and tonight occupied the pulpits of local churches. At St. Paul's United Evangelical church, where the conference is being held, Bishop B. R. Hartzeler preached this morning. This afternoon he conducted the annual ordination services. Tonight the Rev. Dr. Duba of Harrisburg preached.

At St. Paul's church today the Sunday school meeting was held and addresses were delivered by all the former pastors of this church.

PLEASANT WEATHER TOOK HUNDREDS TO THE PARKS

Crocuses Are Sprouting Out at Schenley and the Highland Zoo Is Entertaining Strangers.

Schenley park had many visitors yesterday. Not since the chrysanthemum show last fall have there been so many people in the park on Sunday, which means, since Sunday is the day on which the largest crowds of the week attend, that yesterday the people turned out in greater numbers than for months.

Although the sun shone the roadways in Schenley and Highland parks were disagreeable, for on most of them there was still ice. Not many horse-drawn vehicles or automobiles were out on account of the bad condition of the roads, but pedestrians were many.

The continuous flower show in the conservatory in Schenley park attracted many sightseers, for while it is a modest display compared with what is in store for Easter, yet it was very attractive. Two of the wings of the conservatory are filled with Lorraine begonias, cinerarias, specimens and cellas.

The erstwhile modest crocus has grown real bold this year, for visitors to the park were surprised to see several specimens of the bulb sticking their green heads out of the ground. These premature fellows are planted in the two beds in front of the office of the conservatory, and their precocity is accounted for by the warmth that comes from the cellar. It is expected that the crocuses will bloom in a week or so.

The Highland park zoo has received several new recruits. Among them are a bald eagle and two black bears presented by Dr. W. J. Holland, and a monkey, the gift of Jacob Muller of No. 37 engine company, Mt. Washington.

Hundreds of persons visited the Carnegie art gallery. The picture, "Miss Kitty," by J. J. Shannon, which won the first prize and gold medal, is now here, after a tour of all the most important art galleries in the country.

RUSSIANS DRIVEN BACK.

Japanese Legation Receives News of Victories in the Fighting in Manchuria.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The Japanese legation has received the following dispatch from Tokyo, dated March 4, giving a summary of recent war operations:

"In the direction of Hingking our detachment some days ago drove the enemy back to his positions 15 miles southeast and five miles south of Fushun and an engagement is now proceeding. In the direction of Shaho, the enemy's repeated attacks on the night of the 3d of March were all repulsed. In the district lying west of the railway our troops continue to make fierce attacks and are now in occupation of the district extending from Wauchenying five miles west of Shahopu and Sufupu, 80 miles northwest of Wauchenying. On the right bank of the Hun our troops broke the enemy's line of defense and have reached the line extending from Wotzupu, 15 miles southwest of Mukden to Tatzupu, 13 miles west of Mukden, and Lamubo, three miles north of Tatzupu."

GRAVE CHARGES MADE OVER COUNTY ELECTION

Waynesburg Citizens Wrought Up Over Alleged Voting of Repeaters.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

WAYNESBURG, March 5.—Following the bitterest political contest that Greene county has ever known, the returns from the Republican primary election yesterday show Robinson P. Downey, for president judge, has 47 delegates, and ex-Senator S. Walton, 31. Marvin L. Pethel of Jackson township has 32 delegates for county commissioner and Robert W. Munnell of Waynesburg, 26.

It is alleged more than 100 men were brought here from Washington, Canonsburg, Pittsburgh and Wheeling by one of the factions and voted at several precincts—some of them voting as many as five times. One man boasted that 80 of these men had been voted in 15 minutes at the Franklin township polls and that they left on the 3 o'clock train, after being paid $10 each and railroad fare. About the Waynesburg polls there was a crowd of 300 people during the three hours allowed for voting.

The county convention will be held in the court house tomorrow. The returns indicate the nomination of H. Ross Shultz for county auditor and Frank T. Gulker for register and recorder.

CONFIDENCE WAS SHOWN IN FINANCIAL MARKET

Developments Attending the Recovery in Prices of Securities in Wall Street Were Mingled With Conservatism.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, March 5.—Progress of the stock market to a higher level, which reached a feverish condition on Saturday a week ago, was checked during the week, and a period of uncertainty and unsettlement followed, which, however, was but short lived. Developments attending the recovery in prices were such as to show confidence in the business and financial markets, mingled with caution and conservatism. It is probably because of the preponderance of these qualities with the stock market operators in control of the situation that brought about on Tuesday last the delayed culmination of the runaway tactics in stock speculation.

Whatever may be said concerning confidence in present prices of securities and the outlook for a movement toward a still higher level, it was very patent that a substantial element in our market was content to take profits during the week and rest content, awaiting new developments. Considering the outpouring of the better grade of stocks, all of which were high priced securities, it has also to be admitted that up to the present the absorptive power was well tested, and was not found wanting. The immediate future does not always bring forth the fact if the securities transferred has found its staunch an abiding place as before, but experience has taught that as prices advance toward higher levels in a continued bull movement, the securities are gradually finding ownership in hands that are infinitely less able to guard their possession. In other words, as the market, after a long continued rise, finds higher levels, the weaker it usually becomes.

During the week recognition of the truth of this statement found expression in the utterance of a well-known banker, that from now on reactions could be frequently expected.

Nothing has occurred to change the aspect of the security market except the technical conditions brought about by market operators. In the business situation material evidences are now beginning abundantly to crop out, indicating a sound business revival which, in some lines of industry, noticeably the iron and steel trade, may develop into a boom. Coming so soon after the depression of last summer the various industrials are able to give prompt delivery. With the railroad companies, however, the curtailment of business expenditures and outlay, which ceased almost entirely, has left the railroads in a position where their equipment to handle spring business is now stated to be inadequate. This is especially so in the central part of the country. Costs of manufacturing have not advanced, and it is a fact that the usual spring labor demands have not been formulated, nor are there the precursory indications of uneasiness among the workers. Added to these conditions, the speculative element have an abundance of money at hand. There is no disguising the fact that with these conditions speculation for an advance is to be expected. In the past similar conditions have resulted in speculative booms and were maintained until checked through the automatic workings of the money market and the demand and drains upon capital to take care of new enterprises floated while the public mind was keyed up with enthusiasm. Speculation runs its course until it devours, destroys or frightens capital.

Luckily, there have been checks given to tendencies of late and the circumstances attending the stock market at the present time are not such as to allow a repetition of the speculative orgy of 1901. The public, all are now agreed, look with some caution upon the market operations. They are educated, and through frequent reminders of the Shipbuilding scandal, the Montreal & Boston episode, the periodic fulminations of the Boston operator, and latterly the airing of Equitable Life's family embroglio, it found that there is less likelihood of overtrading, which was the practical cause of all previous collapses. It is true that there are scores of newly made millionaires whose plunging operations at intervals have upset the orderly condition and movements of the security markets, but these, too, are more experienced, and are better counseled than heretofore. Many of them have entered business again and are absorbed in the working out of investments and enterprises begun within the last three years.

A consideration of these circumstances results in the belief and hope that despite the average high price for leading securities, there will be caution and conservatism displayed from the present until the crops are in the ground. The situation calls for the exercise of these qualities and unless the best authorities are mistaken, it is likely that the fruits of a display of these qualities will be witnessed. The country is entering upon its spring trade, which promises to be an unusually large one. With the breaking up of winter it is likely that funds will be needed in the interior and will be withdrawn from preserve cities. The manufacturing cities of the east and middle west, which take up the smaller forms of trade, are now beginning to feel the effects of the larger and freer movements in raw materials, and are consequently in need of credits. Speculation has already taken away from the channels of trade a considerable amount of funds, as is witnessed in the loan accounts of the statements of the clearing house.

There were few news factors during the week which bore upon or shaped the course of the market. Uneasiness was engendered by the break of 28 points for the week—of which 21½ points was sustained in one day—in Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company shares. This is one of the companies which it was proposed to include in a southern iron and coal merger and on which an option to buy was given at a price of $125 a share for the common stock. No dividends have ever been paid on this issue, and the price mentioned caused much surprise when the announcement was made.

With the adjournment of congress various matters which have influenced and restrained speculation are temporarily shelved. There is no doubt, however, that the railroad rate problem and the question of giving plenary and rate-making power to the interstate commerce commission is a live one and will again become a factor.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK IN THE LOCAL MARKETS

Prices Broke from High Altitude and Dealers Generally Are Happy.

Last week was one of general settling in the local markets. Everything seemed to be coming down, and dealers as well as consumers were glad of it. Contrary to the general belief of the man who has to pay his grocer or other supply man for everything he eats, the dealer is not making money in times of high prices. It is when prices are low enough for everybody to buy that he waxes wealthy. And that is why the dealers are happy over the present position of the market. The consumer has lots to be thankful for as the result of last week's market changes. Coffee was the first to break, dropping a half cent. Eggs were on the tumble all week, and are now as low as 30 cents a dozen by the case. They will be down several more cents today, as the price in Chicago Saturday was 25 cents, and is bound to drop still farther there today. Butter moved down a cent a pound last Monday and has been on the drop ever since, dealers shading prices a cent or two towards the close of last week. Today it is believed the price will be marked off at least two cents and possibly three on the pound.

Flour made the last break of the week. It moved down 10 cents a barrel last Friday in sympathy with the wheat market. Flour is the most uncertain thing in the market now. Dealers believe it will not be cheaper this month, but will look for a drop after April 1, providing the month of March does not injure the wheat crop, which is now in most promising condition. A general thaw now, however, followed by freezing weather without snow to cover and protect the ground, would mean a tremendous loss to the wheat growers, and a spell of such weather would probably run the price up again along with wheat.

Dealers believe the era of high prices is practically over for the time. Just what general reason may be assigned to the decline it is impossible to say. One thing is certain. The consumer has had much to do with it. He has simply refused to buy at the exorbitant prices which were placed on the cost of living, simply because some fellow was a dirty hog and was growing it tight. The egg and butter markets were notable examples of this. The oleomargarine man reaped a harvest while butter was retailing at 45 cents a pound, and consumers learned, many of them to their surprise, that oleo was just as palatable as butter and every bit as wholesome. This discovery drove hundreds, probably thousands, in this city alone to the use of the substitute. The result has been a boom in the oleo business and a break in the market for butter.

Sugar is another market which is feeling the effects of high prices. There is no cheap and healthy substitute for sugar, but consumers have cut down their orders and retailers refuse to buy ahead. The sale of sugar has been steadily curtailed as a result, and there is a big difference in the profits of the refiners which does not make the high price a satisfactory one to them. Coffee suffered some and flour very materially. Wholesalers generally are glad of the lowered prices.

HAY AND GRAIN.

Receipts.

Receipts of hay and grain yesterday were as follows: Pennsylvania lines, 5 cars hay, 1 car straw, 4 cars corn, 1 car corn and oats, 3 cars oats, 3 cars rye, 1 car rye, Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, 3 cars hay, 2 cars oats, 1 car rye; Baltimore & Ohio, 2 cars hay, 1 car oats.

The week just ended in the hay and grain market has witnessed a better market than any this year. Receipts last Saturday were very light, due partly, to no deliveries being made by the Ft. Wayne owing to the wreck at Cliffton Friday evening. The bidding for future delivories Saturday was very strong on the exchange, indicating that dealers have faith in the days to come and believe the present prices are good for some little time.

WINDUP WILL BE VERY LIVELY

State Appropriation Bills Will Make Final Days of Legislature Busy Ones.

FORECAST OF LEGISLATION

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
HARRISBURG, PA., March 5.

Gov. Pennypacker is expected to send to the senate on Monday evening the appointment of James S. Young, of Pittsburgh, to the vacancy on the Allegheny county common pleas bench, created by the resignation of Judge Elliott Rodgers, which took effect yesterday.

Appropriation and revenue bills will have the right-of-way in both branches of the legislature during the remainder of the present session, which is fast drawing to a close. The house appropriations committee has prepared a calendar of bills to be reported as soon as the general appropriation bill is ready to be brought out. There are 320 appropriation bills in the house committee and 100 in the senate committee, many of which will have to be dropped because of the scarcity of state funds.

The Plummer bills appropriating a total of $800,000 for two state consumptive hospitals and the bill appropriating $2,000,000 for the care and treatment of the indigent insane will be reported from the house appropriations committee tomorrow night. The committee, accompanied by Speaker Walton, will go to Pittsburgh next Saturday to be the guests of the associated hospitals of that city at a reception, and to inspect the Pittsburgh and Allegheny institutions asking state aid.

The committee will give a hearing on Monday evening on the bills for six Lackawanna county institutions and three Philadelphia institutions. Bills for the Mercer hospital, Spangler, Buhl hospital and Curtis home, will be considered by the committee on Tuesday evening. The bills of the Western University of Pennsylvania, Rosella Foundling and Newsboys' Home, Pittsburgh; Bradford hospital, Kane hospital, Johnstown hospital, Polk Institute for Feeble Minded and Slippery Rock State normal school will be considered on Wednesday evening.

Must Consult State's Revenue.

The committee will give a hearing on Thursday on the bills for statues to Gen. St. Clair and Mollie Pitcher, and the bills of the Monongahela hospital, Brookville Home, McKees Rocks hospital and Boys' Industrial Home, Oakdale. A committee of Philadelphia physicians will come here on Tuesday to advocate the passage of the Plummer bills and the bills to make vaccination compulsory in time of epidemics, to preserve the purity of the water supply, to permit closer control of contagious and infectious diseases, to prevent adulterations of milk, to regulate baby-farming, and to regulate employment agencies.

The revenue bills pending in the house ways and means committee will be taken up and acted upon at a meeting of the committee on Wednesday. More than half of these measures were prepared by Auditor General Snyder and the indications are that they will be brought out and passed. After these bills are out of the way it will be an easy matter for the senate and house appropriations committee to determine how much money shall be appropriated to the state's public and private charities.

Compared with the legislature of 1903 there have been comparatively few bills, outside of the appropriation measures, introduced in the present legislature. Altogether, there have been presented in the house not more than 600 bills, which is just about half the number that were presented for a corresponding period in the last legislature. There are few bills on the calendar of either body that cannot be disposed of in short order, so that there can be no grounds for the fear that the decks will not be cleared to adjourn finally on April 13.

The bill creating a state armory board for the erection of armories for the organizations of the Pennsylvania National guard and the bill regulating fire insurance companies are the only measures on the senate calendar for final passage. There are seven bills on the senate third reading calendar. Of these those providing for the erection of a soldiers' memorial hall in Allegheny county and regulating the practice of osteopathy, are the only measures of general interest.

Bills on the Calendars.

Among the bills on the senate calendar for second reading are those fixing the time when school taxes shall be collected in third-class cities and giving to cities the right to take lands under eminent domain proceedings for the purpose of building sewers within or without their corporate limits. The bills providing for the annexation of Allegheny to Pittsburgh and the house bill to provide for the state registration of nurses are among the 15 measures on the senate calendar for first reading.

There are enough bills on the house calendar to keep that body busy the greater part of the week. Among the bills on second reading calendar are those regulating the hours of employment in the anthracite mines and the state game commission's bill. Bills on the house calendar for second reading include those increasing the salaries of the deputy banking commissioner, abolishing capital punishment and the senate bill regulating the salaries of the attorney general and his assistants.

Both the house and senate have Allegheny county new court bills and the bill increasing the number of jurors in the common pleas courts of counties having three or more such courts are still on the house postponed calendar for third reading. A conference of the Republican leaders of the senate and house will probably be held during the present week to arrange a program for the remainder of the legislative session.

EVIDENT PREPARATIONS FOR A BIG STRIKE

[By PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—An army of men fully 700 strong, surrounded and closely watched, traversed Philadelphia's streets today and later left for New York on a special train of 11 cars. During the night 800 other men passed through this city and it is said are being distributed in Newark and Jersey City. Hotels here are making arrangements to care for 800 more men.

The men are mostly uncommunicative and the leaders absolutely silent. In labor circles, however, there is but one opinion and that is that some great electric or steam railroad in New York is preparing against a possible strike of its employes, or, what is regarded as still more possible, there is to be trouble on one of the divisions of the subway.

All the men who have passed through Philadelphia so far come from Chicago, Columbus, Indianapolis and Pittsburgh.

VOTED AGAINST PITTSBURGH.

Window Glass Union Headquarters Remain in Cleveland—Second Ballot for President Necessary.

CLEVELAND, O., March 5.—Eleven members of the advisory board of the Amalgamated Window Glass Workers of America met here today to count the vote for president. A. L. Faulkner of Dunkirk, Ind., led over 14 other candidates, Daniel Winters, Jr., of Pittsburgh, was second.

The vote on the Matthews resolution providing for an increase in the assessment from 1 to 3 per cent was defeated. The vote on the change of location of headquarters from Cleveland to Pittsburgh was overwhelmingly against Pittsburgh. The vote to elect officers by popular vote was defeated by a close margin. A second ballot for president has been ordered and will be counted on the first Saturday night in April.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION OF LOCAL OCTOGENARIAN

MRS. HELENE HIRSCH.

Mrs. Helene Hirsch of 19 Pride street, mother of Isaac E. and Louis Hirsch, of the Neeb-Hirsch Publishing Company, was 80 years of age yesterday. Owing to a prolonged illness, from which she is just recovering, there was no formal celebration of the event, but a constant stream of callers and numerous letters and telegrams from all parts of the country and from abroad expressed the good wishes and the high esteem of a host of relatives and friends. Surrounded by her children, grandchildren and numerous other relatives and friends the aged lady spent a happy birthday and was the recipient of many floral and other remembrances.

Mrs. Hirsch, whose maiden name was Einstein, was born in Laupheim, in the kingdom of Wuertemberg, Germany, on March 5, 1825, and came to America in 1853, joining a married sister in Minnesota. There she was married in 1858 to Max Hirsch, a native of Karlsruhe, Germany, who had emigrated to America in his boyhood, and after a few years' sojourn in the south, had become one of the settlers of Carver county, Minnesota. In 1861 the young couple, with their first child, Isaac E. Hirsch, came to Pittsburgh, the Indian disturbances in the northwest having caused them to leave that section. In the following year and shortly after the birth of a second son, Louis, Mrs. Hirsch was bereft of her husband, who died in this city on November 5, 1862. Mrs. Hirsch is a member of the Rodef Sholom congregation, of the Hebrew Ladies' Aid society, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Gusky orphanage and the Ladies' Aid society of the German Protestant orphanage, and is noted for her many private acts of charity.

INAUGURATION DETAILS ENTERTAININGLY TOLD

From grave to gay, from festival to funeral, a wide range of variety, which leaps from the pomp and pleasures of inaugural scenes at Washington to sadness and sorrow at Cleveland and war and its attendant carnage in the far east, will serve to introduce the manifold topics which The Sunday Gazette chronicled. All this is found in the regular news columns where nothing essential or worth printing was overlooked, even to the most minute details. They make up but a very small portion of the great weekly journal. The Home Journal section was rather above its usual excellent standard. It combined fiction and poetry and plain talks on domestic affairs and a whole fund of other matters which bring a contented mind to a Sunday reader. The Sunday Gazette comedians were also in rare form, Buster Brown, Jimmie, the Messenger Boy, and other old favorites joining with each other to "delight a large and appreciative audience."

President Roosevelt's and Vice-President Fairbanks' inauguration ceremonies occupied the center of the national stage on Saturday, and The Sunday Gazette had a strong journalistic force at the capital to see to it that its readers lost none of the details. The exercises outshone any previous attempt in the inauguration line, and all details are told succinctly and entertainingly in The Sunday Gazette. The story of the grandeur of the inaugural ball has peculiar attractiveness for all women, and it is rendered doubly so by Miss Bradshaw's pleasing description. For the thoroughness in which the entire ceremonies are covered, from the trumpet's first call in the morning until midnight, The Sunday Gazette is certainly worthy of preservation.

The Russian army is still hard pressed. The Japanese have cut off the left wing and are threatening to cut off the retreat. The church ceremony for Miss Porter, daughter of Ambassador Porter at Paris, was solemnized. The czar's rescript regarding an elective assembly was well received by the Russian people. The German government is believed to have sounded the American state department regarding a commercial treaty.

Citizens County Chairman O'Neil held a conference with rural workers. Judge Elliott Rodgers retired from the bench to become counsel for the Pittsburgh Coal Company. Attorney A. J. Barton debarred from practice by court of common pleas No. 2. O'Donovan Rossa addressed a meeting in Old City hall in celebration of the birthday of Robert Emmett.

The Pirates will be accompanied on their training trip by a number of local business men. The local bowling race is still very close, and the Unity team has taken the lead by a very small margin. Eight experts on the coast regard Battling Nelson as a real wonder and think he can defeat any fighter in his class. The baseball teams already in the south for spring practice are encountering ideal weather, and the players are rapidly rounding into form. Pittsburgh High school won the Interscholastic Hockey league championship, defeating Wilkinsburg High school 2 to 1 in the deciding game. Pittsburgh beats American Soo in the windup of the International league games in this city.

WELCOME TO LADY CURZON.

Vicerine of India Is Given a Unique Reception Upon Her Arrival at Calcutta.

CALCUTTA, March 5.—Lady Curzon, with her husband, the viceroy of India, has arrived at Calcutta, where she was given a unique reception. The chairman and members of the corporation welcomed her at the railway station and presented her with an address and a diamond ornament.

A regiment of light horse formed a special escort along the beflagged and crowded route to Government House, where a big social gathering cheered her ladyship. An address of welcome in an ivory casket was presented in the throne room by the ladies of Calcutta. Lord and Lady Curzon are delighted with the warmth of the reception.

New Cunarder Reaches Port.

NEW YORK, March 5.—The new Cunarder Caronia arrived today from Liverpool and Queenstown on her maiden voyage after a passage of seven days and nine hours, from the latter port, made at an averge speed of 16.33 knots. The Caronia brought 135 saloon, 268 second cabin and 1,250 steerage passengers, making with her crew of 440 a total of 2,188 persons on board. One death occurred on the passage on March 3. The steamer was not urged on the passage owing to the engines being new. She made 19 knots on her trial trip.

EQUIPMENT COLLAPSES UNDER HEAVY PRESSURE

Rush Order for Armor Plate for War Vessels Causes Bad Accident at Homestead Plant.

Owing to the continuous rush in the production of armor plate for the American war vessels at the Homestead mills, the newest of the big hydraulic armor plate presses broke last Friday and will not be able to resume duty for several days. In the meantime the production of armor is being delayed.

Armor is being rushed through for the Vermont, Nebraska, Kansas and other vessels. The accident to the press is an unusual one, such a one not having occurred for many years.

Officials about the Homestead works are still skeptical about the ability of the Midvale steel plant to turn out armor on specified time under its contract with the government. They say it cost the Carnegie company several years and much money and trouble to get its armor department working smoothly, and the Midvale company will probably have to go through the same experience.

WASHINGTON, PA., March 5.—(Special.)—Charles Goodman, alias Charles Graves, was placed in the Washington county jail here today by County Detective William McCleary. He was brought here from Chicago, where he was arrested several weeks ago on a charge of shoplifting. Annie Kelly was arrested at the same time and was brought to Washington on requisition papers. Goodman was then so ill that he could not be moved.

KNOX IS NOT SERIOUSLY ILL

Report the Senator Is Victim of Organic Disease Is Emphatically Denied.

HE IS NOW AT PALM BEACH

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Room 10, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., March 5.

The report that Senator Knox is seriously ill at Palm Beach, Fla., is met here with the most emphatic denials of those who are in a position to know the facts concerning the senator's health. It is stated he is not critically ill, that he has gone south merely to rest and recuperate from his recent attack of the grip.

The sensational reports that have been circulated are charged to the same source that was responsible for the exaggerated accounts of the senator's sickness when he was confined to his home. Dr. C. W. Richardson, Senator Knox's physician, when seen this evening said:

"The report that Senator Knox is seriously ill or that he is suffering from any organic disease is ridiculous. Do you suppose that if that were true I, as his physician, would have permitted him to take that trip alone? There is absolutely no truth in the rumor. Senator Knox did not give himself time to fully recover from the grip, but went to work too soon and overexerted himself. What he needs is a rest of a few days and he will be all right again. If he is not back here before the extra session of the senate adjourns I will be greatly surprised."

Mr. Charles C. Long, Senator Knox's secretary, also denied the report in emphatic terms. He said:

"Senator Knox went away to rest because he started to work too soon after his attack of the grip. I am in constant communication with him on business matters, and I am informed that he is improving very satisfactorily. There is absolutely no foundation for the sensational reports in circulation in Pittsburgh."

Senator Knox Playing Golf.

PALM BEACH, FLA., March 5.—(Special.)—Senator Philander C. Knox is here to join his family. He is devoted to golf and spent some time on the links yesterday in company with Mrs. Henry C. Frick and Mrs. Norman B. Ream.

Will Commence Work This Week.

IRWIN, March 5.—(Special.)—Work will be commenced the coming week on the final section of the extension of the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Greensburg trolley line from Irwin to Trafford City. At Latimer a bridge will be erected 464 feet long to cross the Pennsylvania tracks, and another will be 440 feet long and 90 feet high. When ready for traffic it is stated, this five miles of road will have cost $250,000.

When the life of Mrs. Ruff was hanging in the balance she used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and was restored to health. Her experience made her the firm friend of the medicine that cured her.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has no equal in its cures of womanly disease. It establishes regularity, dries the drains that weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"Five years ago when my life was hanging in the balance, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was brought to my home," writes Mrs. Caroline Ruff, Director of German Orphan's Home, residing at 19 Rowena Street, Detroit, Mich. "I took it, and it won me back to health. Ever since that time, I have been its firm friend. We frequently have mothers come to our 'Home' who are suffering with uterine troubles, inflammation, tumors and ulcerations. Our great remedy for a female trouble is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and we have found nothing so far which would so quickly cure the disease, relieve inflammation and stop pains. It is a good friend to women."
